GC sewer breaks follow high water table

City council will be asked for funds to repair worst 2 of 5 sewer breaks

By GARY SCHNEIDER
Press-Record Editor

Serious problems are developing with the Granite City sewers and the Granite City Council will be asked in the near future to appropriate money for at least two major sewer replacements, according to Street Superintendent Mac Warfield.

The street department already knew it had problems in several areas when, about 1 p.m. Wednesday, a two-foot circular section of Faith Avenue gave way beneath the right rear wheel of the sewer jet truck and the truck's front lifted up into the air. "We knew we had problems there (the 2600 block of Faith Avenue). I was just getting ready to jet it (flush it with water under 1,200 pounds of pressure) when the truck fell in," said Gordon Pierson of the sewer division.

A tow truck and a backhoe were required to lift the rear of the truck out of the hole, which was several feet deep and had a large volume of flowing water in the bottom.

FIVE SEWER BREAKS

"This isn't the only one (sewer break). We've got a slew of them," said Jerry Lukin, a street department foreman. Warfield said he is aware of five sewer breaks at the current time—2800 Lincoln Ave., 2821 E. 23rd St., 2908 Faith Ave., 12 Terrace Lane and the 2600 block of Faith Avenue.

He blamed the sewer breaks on heavy December rains—which raised the water table in this area as much as three feet and on old sewers. The Faith Avenue sewer is one example, he said, noting that former Street Superintendent Lionel Portell replaced a part of the Faith Avenue sewer and there have been no problems in the newer section. The older part of that line, however, is collapsing and should be replaced, Warfield said. A serious break occurred on Faith Avenue two weeks ago, just two blocks from the spot where the pavement collapsed under the truck Wednesday.

"I will ask the council for money to replace the Faith Avenue and Terrace Lane lines," Warfield told the Press-Record.

The other three breaks are of a less serious nature and are not in areas as heavily populated as the breaks he wants to repair immediately.

He said street and sewer crews worked until midnight Wednesday to dig a trench and install pipes for bypass pumping around the break in the 2600 block of Faith Avenue. Electric pumps were activated Thursday. "We wanted to have that street open by the holiday (New Year's Eve)," Warfield noted.

Two flooded basements on Warren Avenue alerted the street department that the Faith Avenue line was blocked, and it had been jet flushed earlier Wednesday, but that failed to solve the problem for long. Hours later, it collapsed.

LINE'S LEAKING

Warfield noted that a great deal of rain water enters the sewer system during periods of heavy rains. "There has got to be a lot of rain water going into our lines," he said.

One example is the sanitary sewer manhole at St. Clair Avenue and Namooki Road, from which water seeps during each heavy rain. "That is a 10-inch line under Namooki Road and we cleaned those lines last week," Warfield noted. However, the cleaning failed to solve the problem.

The sheer volume of the water coming out of that manhole is an indication of the amount of groundwater leaking into the sewers in that area. "That is a sanitary sewer," Warfield stressed, noting that there should be no ground water in it.

PROBLEM 'UPSTREAM'

The problem is not due to a backup of water from the city's sewage treatment plant, says Terrence McMillan, superintendent of the sewage treatment plant. He said that only about once every two years does the volume of flow to the treatment plant exceed its capacity, causing it to bypass treatment and eject the water directly into the Mississippi River. Such action was far from necessary during any of the December rainfall periods.

"We have 10 pumps, five for the storm sewers and five for the sanitary sewers. Each pumps 35,000 gallons a minute. (During December) We never operated more than three storm pumps at one time and our sewers were dry for a mile back," McMillan explained.

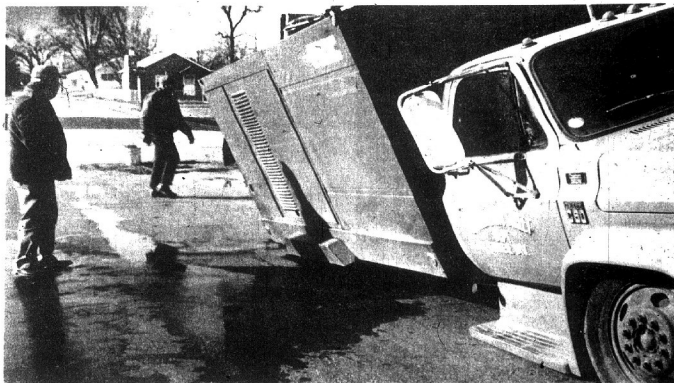

"I would say it is an upstream problem, not downstream," he added. He noted that the sewers are very deep at the treatment plant and gravity should bring the water into them at a rapid rate. The pumping capacity is there to handle it, he noted.

However, during December rains, when many Granite City streets were flooded and sewers were filled beyond capacity, very little of the water was getting to the treatment plant. "I would say there was no significant difference in our daily flow," McMillan stated. "It was nothing to jump up and down about," he added.

DOWN SHE GOES. A Granite City Street Department truck tips after the pavement collapsed under the right rear wheel in the 2600 block of Faith Avenue about 1 p.m. Wednesday. Here, Superintendent of Streets Mac Warfield, left, and Gordon Pierson, driver of the truck, background, exchange ideas on how to raise the truck, a task which required a tow truck and a backhoe.

Caine Steel, Madison Metal Decorating close

Approximately 50 employees of Caine Steel and its affiliate, Madison Metal Decorating, both in Madison, joined the ranks of the unemployed at the close of the working day Thursday as both plants were closed indefinitely, and possibly permanently.

"Negotiations are taking place with a major St. Louis firm to buy it. Then we would be back in business," said Robert Louenstein, president of Caine Steel and Madison Metal Decorating, but he added that it is too early to be optimistic about those negotiations, particularly in light of the current market conditions.

"There is a chance we will reopen under the same name with a new owner," he added.

Caine Steel is a processor of flat rolled steel, specializing in slitting the steel. Madison Metal Decorating coats, paints and decorates steel for various

Sale of both to St. Louis firm could allow reopenings customers. Both plants are located on Carle Drive in the Maeris Industrial Park of Madison and opened in 1969. Louenstein said the closing did not come as a surprise. "We knew it was coming. It was just a matter of when. We (American Industries, New York parent company of Caine Steel) closed seven plants around the country. This was the last one."

He said the dissolving of the company was decreed in the will of the former owner, who died. "It was part of an estate which had to be liquidated," Louenstein noted.

He stressed that there was no bankruptcy, although the market for steel products is poor. "I have never seen it this bad in my 31 years in this business," he said, adding, "I am guessing some sort of (favorable) change, possibly in August."

Louenstein said the closings are "a terrible thing" for his employees, most of whom have been with Caine Steel or Madison Metal Decorating for decades. "Our workers average 26 years in the plant and 24 years in the office. More than half the men in the steel division have more than 30 years (seniority). Even the youngsters in the plant have been with us about 13 years," he noted.

Family aids kidnap suspect

By BILL WINTER
of the Press-Record

Among those for whom the Christmas-New Year holidays were particularly meaningful were Madison County's August 1982 kidnap victims, Dr. and Mrs. Hector Zevallos—and also the family of one of the men waiting to go on trial in the abduction case this month.

Don Benny Anderson, 41, has believed intensely for a long time that abductors are murderers, his relatives told the Press-Record last week as they worked unofficially for his defense. They feel he was trying to act with high motives in doing what he could to discourage such surgery.

Anderson became radicalized toward government and toward "society's laws" two years ago during a property ownership dispute in Texas, his wife and daughter said when interviewed.

Anderson disagrees with the U.S. Supreme Court's stand that abductions are legal under specified conditions. He ordered the abducted physician to perform no more abortions.

The indicted man's wife and daughter came to the newspaper's office to review microfilms of past years' Press-Record issues, looking for references to the abducted couple.

The Zevallos were not harmed by the three men who held them against their wishes for eight days. But the two heard rumors and perceived fear for their lives. The Zevallos still worry about their future safety.

The Andersons traveled to Madison County as part of an effort to help prepare his legal defense.

He is to stand trial Jan. 24 in the abduction of the former Granite Cityans from their home in the Country Club Estates subdivision near Sunset Hill. The doctor operates the Hope Clinic for Women in Granite City.

Anderson and two brothers, Matthew H. Moore, 20, and Wayne A. Moore, 18, were apprehended in November. All have links to Texas and to the Springfield, Ill., area.

Anderson's wife, Margaret, and daughter Lauren, a college student, said their research in Granite City does not seek to discredit Dr. Zevallos but rather is an attempt to learn more about his life to see "what kind of man he is."

They checked many past newspaper files during the visit. Among the cases in which they took an interest was the death of a woman June 14, 1977, after undergoing surgery here earlier the same day.

They also are aware of the activities of the Rev. Edwin Arensen, a priest who frequently has tried to persuade women approaching the clinic not to enter it. The priest has been jailed for brief periods in connection with his actions in Granite City.

Both women voiced a desire to bolster Anderson's defense and said it needs all the help it can get. His fingerprint has been linked to a ransom demand.

Now at the St. Clair County Jail, Belleville, he has been unable to post the required bond.

His wife and daughter think pro-

Quad-Cityans may apply for help in paying heat bills

Quad-City area townships and organizations will begin accepting applications tomorrow for grants to families under the Illinois Home Energy Assistance Program to assist low-income residents in paying their utility bills.

The grants pay a portion of the bills for the primary heating source of homes of low-income residents.

Persons wishing to apply should gather proof of household income for the past 90 days (company check stubs, Social Security forms, a dated letter showing unemployment compensation or a Public Aid green card, or other proof of all family income).

The proof of income over the last 90 days must total $1,347 or less for a single person; $1,783 or less for two people; $2,187 or less for a family of three; $2,668 or less for four people; $2,956 or less for a family of five; $3,221 or less for six persons; $3,397 or less for seven people in a home, or $3,577 or less for a family of eight.

Proof of qualifying income should be taken to the township office in which the home is located. Applicants also should be prepared to provide the following information and materials:

—Name, address and social security number of head of household.

—Age of applicant, male or female and ethnic group.

—Number of persons living in household and age of youngest and oldest.

—Whether any are handicapped or migrants.

—The type of dwelling, single family, or multiple family.

—Whether the home is owned or rented.

—The type of fuel used for primary heating source and a copy of the last utility bill (paid or unpaid), showing the account number.

—The social security card of every member of the household.

Granite City Township residents may call Old Logan School, 2425 Logan Ave., telephone 876-4350, beginning Tuesday, for instructions on when and how to apply.

Chouteau Township residents must call the town hall at 931-1110 for appointments to have their applications filled out.

Nameki and Venice Townships will accept walk-in traffic and will fill out the applications on a first-come, first-served basis.

Venice Township residents should apply at the Madison County Urban League office, 306 Broadway, Venice Mondays through Thursdays from 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. or Fridays between 8:30 a.m. and 12:30 p.m.

Nameki Township residents may apply between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. weekdays at the town hall, 4250 Highway 162.

Persons must apply in the township where they reside.

Qualifying persons will receive checks approximately 45 days after applying. "So please be patient and do not flood the phones with unnecessary calls," a spokesman for the Madison County Economic Opportunity Commission, lead agency for the program, said.

Illinois revenue still shrinking

Budget Director Robert Mandeville says state revenues continue to be below previous estimates and are expected to be $166 million lower than previously expected for fiscal 1983 (July 1982 to June 1983).

"The long decline in the national and international economic picture continues to take its toll on Illinois," Mandeville said.

"The lower revenues from state and federal sources going into the general funds are the result of a decline in the economy."

"State and federal monies going into the general funds have been revised from $8.733 billion to $8.567 billion for fiscal '83."

"Illinois state revenues, particularly the income and sales taxes, are sensitive to changes in the economic outlook. Because of the lower forecasts of economic activity, the estimate for the state's income tax was revised downward by $149 million and the sales tax was lowered $44 million," Mandeville said.

He cautioned that further declines are possible, indicating that the revenue slide experienced so far this year may not yet have run its course.

Fiscal 1983 revenue yields after five months illustrate the weakness in the economy. Collections through November of the state's two largest revenue sources, the income and sales taxes, lag $3 million behind the amount collected last year.

The revenue shortfall has unbalanced the state budget and helped take cash balances in the general funds to low levels. The state's available balance was $43 million at the end of November, a figure slightly over one day of government spending. Mid-December cash levels were running somewhat lower.

Based on an earlier, preliminary assessment of the revenue shortfall, the governor presented a financial plan to bring the state's budget back into balance and to strengthen the cash position.

His plan included a one-time acceleration of revenues paid the state by utility companies, a $34 million revenue improvement, and the authority to reduce state spending by up to $164 million (2 percent). Each measure has been approved by the General Assembly.

The governor is currently working with state agencies to implement the spending reductions.

If state revenues do not slide further, the spending reductions will help balance the budget and, later in the year, improve the state's cash position. Until that time, cash balances in the general funds will remain comparatively low, necessitating at times additional cash flow actions.

For example, Mandeville said he has asked the superintendent of education, Donald Gill, to submit the payment voucher for the distributive aid payments to schools no earlier than the statutory requirement.

While state revenues in December will be in excess of $600 million, the quarterly payment of the state's corporate income tax by businesses is not received until later in the month.

Mandeville said current legislative and executive estimates of general funds revenues are essentially the same, even though the Bureau of the Budget's latest estimate is $28 million less (4.71 percent) than the revenues estimated last month by a legislative commission.

GC resident administrator of St. Louis Eye Hospital

JOY BARR

Joy Barr, a registered nurse, has been appointed administrator of the St. Louis Eye Bank. She will report to Dr. Flavious G. Pernoud III, medical director of the bank, which is located at the St. Louis Eye Hospital in Richmond Heights, Mo.

Miss Barr is a native and resident of Granite City. The Lions Eye Bank is a joint venture of Districts 26A-1 and 26A-2 of Lions International. The bank makes available donor corneas for needy individuals in the metropolitan area.

Staff members from the St. Louis Eye Hospital and adjacent Bellevue Medical Center are on call around-the-clock to remove donor eyes. These members include Anita Massey, Linda Morrill, Sharon Kilker, Elizabeth Dodd, Mary Hull, Linda Litzelman, Rose Douglas, Teri Rolwes, Charlotte Murley and Barbara Kostal, all of whom are certified eye educators.

Information on donating eyes may be obtained from the Lions Eye Bank at 1-314-761-7400, or from any area Lion's Club member.

As administrator, Miss Barr brings an extensive nursing background to the position at the eye bank. A cum laude graduate from St.

Louis University, where she received bachelor of arts degrees in English literature, she received her R.N. from Missouri Baptist Hospital School of Nursing.

Miss Barr has served on the staffs of Jewish Hospital of St. Louis, St. Louis University Hospitals, Kimberly Nurses' Hospital in San Antonio, Texas, the San Antonio Community Hospital, and has been nursing supervisor at the St. Louis Eye Hospital since it opened two years ago. She was certified as an eye enucleator from the Eye and Ear Infirmary in Chicago.

Water—surplus on ground doesn't reduce the price from the faucet

Water was the main topic at last week's meeting of the Chouteau Town Board. The board discussed the Mitchell Water District and the flooded areas in Chouteau Township, were primary topics at the meeting.

Of particular interest was the water problem facing residents of Sunny Shores Mobile Home Park on Chain Road. The park is private property and the owner allegedly is pumping water from the residential area into a state ditch, it was announced at the meeting.

For those who have severe drainage problems residents may call Bob Douglas, president of the Chouteau, Nameoki and Venice Drainage and Levee District. He also is the owner and operator of the Canal Motel.

A notice by the Mitchell Water District, this month, informed residents that their bills will increase by 15 percent effective Jan. 1, 1983.

The board of trustees agreed to pay all insurance premiums, including those related to the township hall and vehicles owned by the township.

They also approved a motion to purchase a new calculator for Marion Sparks, Chouteau Township Assessor.

The next regular meeting is scheduled for Jan. 10, at 7 p.m., according to Walter Sparks, township supervisor.

Fight low-income fuel aid cutback

Senator Charles H. Percy (R-Ill.) has urged the Administration not to make any cuts in the federal fuel assistance budget for the 1983-84 fiscal year.

Responding to reports that it is considering slashing low-income energy assistance funding from $1.875 billion to $1.3 billion, Percy noted that "simply holding funding at current levels puts enough of a burden on the poor."

In a letter to David Stockman, director of the Office of Management and Budget, Percy along with a bipartisan group of 36 senators urged that fuel assistance funding be maintained at least at the 1982-83 level to help ensure that Illinoisans do not have to "choose between food and fuel." The 36 include Sen. Alan Dixon of Illinois.

"The program helps millions of Americans cope with rising fuel costs," Percy said. "In the face of high unemployment, it would be unwise to cut back."

Percy said slashing fuel assistance would force natural gas consumers to confront an increase in gas costs of 20 to 30 percent, in addition to already high heating oil prices.

"Low-income and elderly persons are particularly hard hit by these prices because they spend a much larger percentage of their incomes on heating their homes," Percy said.

New administrator for Weber's office

By JUDY TAPLIN
Marvin Darling says he was fired last month from his job as administrator in the office of Madison County State's Attorney Don Weber.

Weber says Darling walked out after learning that his salary was being cut from $22,000 a year to $17,500.

Darling, of Collinsville, a of Weber's, was Collinsville's street superintendent following Weber's election in 1979 to the city council.

When Weber was elected state's attorney in 1980, he tapped Darling as his office administrator.

Weber confirmed that Virginia Rulison, another personal friend who followed Weber to the state's attorney's office, will take over Darling's job.

Weber did not state the amount she will be paid, but said it will not be as much as $22,000. Her current salary is $16,700, he said.

Weber said he felt Darling's salary was too high in relation to what prosecutors in his office received.

He said there were also other factors involved. "We didn't see eye to eye on the way things ought to be run. Marvin has been a friend for a long time, but regardless, the job has to get done, and it wasn't,"

Weber said Darling walked out, "left us in the lurch," declining even to explain where various forms were filed.

"I didn't fire him; Virginia didn't fire him. It is not going to be fun for anyone," Darling's version is different. He said Virginia

Rulison fired him after he protested the pay cut.

He said Weber was not present at the time, but he is convinced that she had Weber's approval.

Darling told a reporter Weber had become unhappy with him because "I called him to account on some things."

One such matter involved the number of hours Virginia Rulison worked. Darling claims she is frequently out of the office and he said he felt uncomfortable approving her pay for work he did not think she did.

He said she explained her absences by saying she was doing public relations for Weber.

"Over the last year, it became apparent I was being undermined by the guy. Every time I was making a decision, he was doing the opposite," Darling said.

When Weber, after election to the Collinsville council, left his job as given street department jurisdiction, he insisted on a new street superintendent to replace Andy Wrigley.

Weber chose Darling, despite the fact that Darling's background was chemistry, not street repair and maintenance.

The rest of the city council has balked at this selection process, deciding instead to advertise the position. Darling was one of the three finalists, and got the job.

Although employees are required to live in the city, Darling did not, the council waived the requirement by deciding that his technical knowledge was needed.

Darling replaced Dewey Van Dyke as administrator in the state's attorney's office after Weber defeated Nick Byron in November 1980.

In an interview with a reporter, Weber, noting that Darling's field is chemistry, said he would be a good employee for some company in that line.

Weber said Virginia Rulison stepped in to fill Darling's spot because "somebody has to take his place."

With several important cases coming up, and a grant application for a study on juries in capital cases in the offing, it was essential that his office be running smoothly, Weber said.

"If she can do it, great. I don't see why I'd be criticized for this," he said, adding that both he and the public want his office to be run efficiently.

Many people had viewed Darling's administrative job as political, Weber said. Weber said he was sorry Darling had to leave "under these circumstances."

Darling said his next step is to look for another job. Will he vote for Weber's re-election in 1984?

"I think probably not," Darling said.

Another change in Weber's staff occurred Dec. 3 when Yvette Manoojian of Granite City was dismissed. Virginia Rulison told her she might be considered for rehiring in the future.

Asked about reports that staff members who failed to make $750 political contributions to the Weber re-election campaign, were firing themselves in disfavor, the Granite Cityan said "that's part of it" but not the entire reason why her employment was ended. She did not give to the campaign.

REPORTS BEATING AT FRIEND'S HOME
John Chandler, 19, of 2606 Grand Ave., reported being beaten by two men last week while visiting at the home of a friend in the 2500 block of Grand Avenue.

Chandler, who sustained a laceration and abrasions to the face and lower back, said three men came into his friend's house and one asked, "Don't I know you from somewhere?" The man then started hitting him and one of the other two men also beat him, Chandler said.

The victim's friend and the latter's father got the men out of the dwelling and the altercation continued in the street, they told police.

GAS SIPHONED
Joseph Piner, 911 Greenwood St., Madison, reported at 7:55 a.m. Tuesday that $15 worth of gasoline was siphoned from his 1973 Plymouth station wagon while it was parked in front of his home. He said this was the second time gas had been taken from his vehicle and the thieves left a hose lying beside the car this time.

BRIEF PONTON BOARD MEETING
By PAT HAY LUTZ
of the Press-Record

During their regular meeting, which lasted only five minutes, Pontoon Beach trustees approved the minutes of the previous meeting and voted to pay outstanding bills. No other formal business was conducted.

All council members were present at the meeting and wished the community a Happy New Year.

The next regular meeting for the Pontoon Beach Village Board will be Tuesday, Jan. 11, 1983, at 7 p.m.

Applications taken for Six Flags jobs

Six Flags Over Mid-America will begin accepting applications for 1983 seasonal employment on Monday, Jan. 10, at the Six Flags Personnel Office.

Personnel Manager Doug Rau, anticipates more than 7,000 applicants for the 2,900 seasonal positions that have been established for the upcoming season.

Applicants must be at least 16 years of age and possess a Social Security number. Job opportunities cover a wide and diverse spectrum, from working in a merchandise shop to operating a world famous roller coaster, to preparing unique foods to possibly being the man in the Pac Man costume character.

Rau said that, "Six Flags utilizes a two-step process in selecting new members of the host and hostess team an application and a personal interview."

Prior to applying for employment, he suggests a few tips that the applicant should consider. In order to complete the written application, be prepared with appropriate dates, past experience, school work, activities, personal interests, honors and awards.

"In preparation for the interview, consider appearance — a well-groomed, professional appearance is an expression that you care," Rau said. Additionally, communication skills and an attitude toward service are primary areas for consideration.

"Six Flags is a people business," Rau said. "Anyone working here must be able to communicate with a park guest and provide that guest with impeccable service."

Interested persons should apply in person at the Six Flags Personnel Office, Interstate 44 and Alton-Six Flags Road Jan. 10 through September. The Personnel Office is open Mondays through Fridays, from 9 a.m. until 4:30 p.m. and Saturdays, 9 a.m. until 11:30 a.m., through April 30.

BURGLAR CUTS HAND IN THEFT

An unknown person broke into the Sun Bright Landromat, 529 Salvator Ave., Venice, last week and apparently cut his hand while breaking the glass in a candy machine, it was reported by George Daniels.

According to the report, Daniels arrived at the landromat and discovered a plexi-glass window had been broken. Nothing was discovered missing at the time of the report but blood was found on the candy machine.

WALLNET SNATCHED ON BUS
Wilbert Pearson of East St. Louis told Madison police last week that while a passenger on a B-State bus coming into Madison earlier in the week, a man grabbed his wallet, containing $120 cash and a check for $119, from his rear pocket.

He described the thief as black, between 30 and 35 years old, 5 feet, 6 inches tall and stockily built. He had a mustache and wore a black hat and a leather coat.

Our resolution is for quality

It is a time for making New Year's resolutions. We have a resolution to make too. We resolve to continue to bring you the most complete, accurate, responsible newspaper we can throughout 1983.

We resolve to put to rest, once and for all, the allegations that the Press-Record treats some individuals more fairly than others, that we leave out articles about friends and advertisers and that we have done "favors" for some by omitting articles while refusing to grant similar "favors" to others.

Perhaps we have not communicated our news policies clearly enough so the public understands what we consider news and what we don't. One person's arrest may be printed, if the charge is armed robbery, when another's may not be, when the charge is disorderly conduct. The differentiation in whose name is printed lies in the charge, not in the individual.

We resolve to do all in our power to explain our reasoning for some of the news decisions we have to make during 1983 and implore anyone who has questions why a certain article did or did not get into the paper to call us and ask our reasoning. We would much prefer to explain how our policies certain circumstances than to have people draw their own conclusions and think the worst.

We are extremely proud of our ethics and pledge to continue to uphold only the highest possible ethics during 1983. The Press-Record has been YOUR home town newspaper for 80 years. You have played an important part in its evolution during the years.

We have an obligation to bring you the news in as complete and accurate a form as possible. You pay for it and you deserve it. We recognize that you pay for the Press-Record and our competition is free. We believe our quality has more than justified the 25 cents per issue and we resolve to keep it that way during 1983.

Happy New Year. May we all keep our resolutions in this new, fresh year.

Up in the air, for two centuries

The new year of 1983 will bring worldwide observance of the 200th anniversary of manned flight. The first hot air balloon flight was carried out near Paris, France, in November 1783 by Francis DeRozier and the Marquis d'Arlandes. This was followed a few weeks later by the first gas balloon ascent.

Air and gas balloons are still around, as holiday football bowl viewers are aware. But more significant was Wilbur and Orville Wright's Kitty Hawk airplane flight 50 years ago.

The ultimate impact of Astronaut Alan Shepard's first manned flight into space in 1961 is still being evaluated as the many benefits of space travel continue to emerge.

President Ronald Reagan has accepted honorary chairmanship of the U.S. Air and Space Bicentennial Committee. He comments that the occasion gives America an opportunity to honor its numerous aviation and space heroes and achievements, as well as providing a time to reflect on our aviation heritage.

This heritage is well known to the aviation community, but most of those who develop and use the technological marvels retain a low public profile.

Coverage of spectacular feats and disasters certainly has been extensive, and may have tended to overshadow the significance of aviation in daily life.

The Wright brothers' success at Kitty Hawk is well documented but at the time did not arouse much public acclaim. One newspaper said it was "interesting" but then asked, "What good is it?"

The same question may still reflect the view of some, and there is pressure currently to restrict aviation activities, particularly as they relate to the use and improvement of airports. Citizens' concerns include noise and other environmental factors, such as land use.

It would be highly appropriate for extra attention to be given during 1983 to the positive socio-economic influence—in major metropolitan areas like this as well as in the many small agricultural towns linked by air.

Improve rail yards and roadbed

With "bullet trains" now in the development stage in coastal areas of this country, intended to match existing service in Japan and Europe, the subject of speeding up railroad service in general is receiving growing attention. Locally, there are two centers of interest.

1. Illinois has joined Indiana, Ohio, Michigan and Pennsylvania in a High Speed Rail Compact that hopes to connect Midwestern cities with high-speed rail corridors.

Merrill Travis, chief of the Illinois Transportation Department's Bureau of Railroads, comments that "the time is not ripe now, but after the recession we should be looking to the future and reviving inter-city rail transport."

A technical committee is exploring a variety of new rail technologies, including magnetic levitation, resurfacing of specific "dedicated" tracks, new suspension systems for passenger cars, use of super-elevated rails, and improved roadbeds.

2. Relocation of rail yards and simplification of procedures to speed freight to, through and from this metropolitan area. Once a top-ranking national rail center, this region could regain that position if the Metropolitan Area Rail Gateway Enterprise succeeds. Congress has just authorized up to $40 million in low-interest loan funds, on top of an earlier allocation of $25 million.

The Terminal Railroad Association of St. Louis this month voted to apply for $20 million to finance the first phase of the MARGE project. If the Federal Railway Administration approves the application, construction can begin in the summer of 1983.

About $10 million would be spent to replace nine rail yard control towers in Illinois and Missouri with a single electronic remote control facility at the TRRA's Madison yards in the Madison-Venice area. Another $10 million would be used to install heavyweight steel rails in place of existing light rails along bi-state area mainline rail corridors.

Consolidation of control towers and track improvements would improve safety as well as expediting the handling of freight traffic. Travis points out. A side benefit would be the freeing of 1,500 river-front acres at East St. Louis.

JANET FRANKLIN

PAM GIBSON

BETH BOYD

RAY STRADEY

A member of the Press-Record editorial staff interviewed people shopping at Crossroads Shopping Plaza asking them about School District Nine's current financial dilemma. Presently, the district is an estimated $7.7 million in the red. To meet its financial obligations, the board is considering closing some of the district's 18 schools. Persons were asked about the board's proposal. Their reactions follow:

Janet Franklin, Madison

"I don't see how the district has any alternatives than to close some schools. I'm not from this district, but the fundamentals apply — you can only have what you can afford. They're going to have to consolidate."

Beth Boyd, Granite City

"If some schools are to be consolidated I'd rather see the elementary schools consolidated than the high schools. Then, if they can't make ends meet they should consolidate the high schools. If it happens (consolidation of high schools) there'll probably be some initial problems. I don't think the kids are too crazy about it."

Pam Gibson, Granite City

"No, I don't think it's right (to have to consolidate schools.) I realize that they're facing declining enrollments, but fewer kids are going on to college today. Because of that they need all the opportunities two high schools can give. If it came down to taxes, I guess I'd even be in favor of increasing taxes."

Ray Stradey, Granite City

"It's unfortunate, but it looks like it's something that has to be done. No, I wouldn't favor a tax increase to support both schools, and I think you'd be hard pressed to find someone in this town who would right now. I know I'm not in favor of it, and I know my 17-year-old daughter who's a student at North isn't happy about the proposal either."

Tough times for schools; need state tax hike

To the Editor: The school board did not want to raise taxes to rid the local schools of a deficit of some $7 million.

The state has been playing a game of "rob Peter to pay Paul" in meeting its own financial dilemma.

In many instances, allocations to schools have been drastically reduced or payments postponed. It's no wonder the school district is in such fiscal straits.

School districts throughout the state are being used. The governor is well aware that taxes at the state level must be increased.

In my opinion, he has strategically chosen the schools to get the message of the state's crunch across to the people.

The state politicians also know that there are several ways schools can raise money, by using contingencies such as the working cash fund, which increases the tax rate by a few mills.

Without a referendum, the district could increase the tax rate by as much as 20 cents. This would mean that the average homeowner would pay about $20 property tax per year and would give the schools a half million dollars and save about 30 to 40 jobs.

Within four years, a trade-off is going to be made by the state to increase income tax and reduce property tax. It's political suicide to increase taxes unless an atmosphere is created for the needed public sentiment.

Then, a sugarcoted tax trade-off will be made. In the meantime, school officials statewide should steer the course carefully and take advantage of the needed bucks they can raise without a big burden upon their constituents.

Millions of dollars were lost from the general funds by virtually wiping out the inheritance tax.

A few years ago, sales tax was reduced on food items. Unemployment has caused a drastic reduction in the income tax.

Therefore, the state government will either increase taxes or continually cut allocations. Neither is popular but the writing is on the wall to increase state revenues.

Our locality has been particularly hard hit with unemployment.

The school board should be commended for trying to solve their financial problems by employee attrition; they should continue to reduce costs this way instead of massive layoffs and by taking advantage of the creative financing available to them.

Those on the unemployment-mill rolls do little to lift us out of our economic low.

P.S. Your paper has been very informative on the subject.

St. Elizabeth recognizes volunteers, others

To the Editor:

As 1982 draws to a close and we begin a new year, I would like to recognize those who have given generously of their time, talent and resources to help our patients and community residents who are less fortunate. There are so many of these thoughtful individuals that it would not be possible to mention each by name here, but the following is a partial list.

—Our adult and junior volunteers, who have given 53,000 hours of their time this year at the medical center.

—Our Hospice volunteers, who have given between 6,000 and 7,000 hours of their time this year to ease the suffering of others.

—Our associates, who contributed food, clothing and household items to 51 needy households this Christmas.

—Those individuals who donated money to our Mobile Meals program. Their donations totaled more than $8,300 making it possible for many ill or handicapped people to receive hot meals delivered to their homes throughout the year.

—Our SEMC Auxiliary members, whose donations to the medical center this year totaled more than $180,000. Through the generosity of the Auxiliary, we were able to open an Oncology Unit this year and purchase new ultra-sound equipment. The Auxiliary also provided $9,000 worth of scholarships for area young people this year.

—Special recognition to those who sacrificed part of their Christmas Day celebration to bring Mobile Meals recipients to the medical center for Christmas dinner. Volunteers also provided musical entertainment for the occasion.

The Christmas season at SEMC was made brighter this year by visits from carolers and "Santa Claus" from the community. Our spirits were lifted with decorations donated by the Auxiliary and private individuals.

—Our associates went out of their way to make the medical center surroundings more cheerful for their patients. They paid out of their own pockets to decorate their work areas. Some even released Christmas songs on their own time so they could sing carols for their patients.

We are proud to recognize these and all those who have been willing to give at a time when so many need so much.

Bail cut is denied

If Thomas R. Brimberry is to gain his freedom prior to two federal trials, he will need to raise $200,000 cash.

Two $100,000 bonds were left unchanged in decisions Wednesday by U.S. District Judge William Beatty in Illinois and Thursday by U.S. Magistrate Robert Kingsland in Missouri.

Brimberry's lawyer stressed that the former Granite City—central figure in the Stix & Co. stock company collapse of November 1981—has never been convicted of a crime and kept in regular touch with federal authorities before being jailed on 15 indictment counts issued in Missouri and three counts in Illinois.

A representative of the Securities and Exchange Commission outlined allegations that Brimberry has threatened some of his associates with a "blood trail" and that he might flee from the U.S. if released from the St. Clair County jail in Belleville.

Brimberry has not been charged in connection with the looting of brokerage accounts of millions of dollars. He is accused of improperly trying to hide aspects of his $16 role after he had agreed to cooperate fully with the SEC.

KICKED IN FACE AT CAFE

Ronald Daugherty, 5009 Lewis Ave., suffered injuries when he was shoved behind the bar at the 10th Hole Tavern, 2401 Washington Ave., and was kicked on the face by a man wearing boots, he told police at 11:30 a.m. Sunday.

Daugherty had visible marks under his left eye and on his forehead and chest. His nose was swollen and appeared to have been broken, officers said. He was advised to seek medical attention at St. Elizabeth Medical Center and to talk with detectives Monday.

News notes

Budget cutting plans of the governor include $2,500,000 from Southern Illinois University and $5 million from scholarship and community college budgets.

Extensive Chicago area vote fraud in the November election is being investigated. The Illinois Supreme Court may decide tomorrow whether to order a statewide recount.

The state education superintendent has ruled that school systems cannot go to a four-day week except in fuel emergencies.

The new year has brought a virtual end to the Illinois inheritance tax and to drug paraphernalia shops. The federal excise tax on telephone service is rising from one to three percent.

The Madison County dog pound is now charging townships and cities to pick up stray dogs from their holdings.

Creation of a new mobile home park is being studied in Pontoon Beach. A public hearing on the proposal is set for noon Jan. 22.

STEAL SHOTGUN

Norman Roy Lucas, 1718 Delmar Ave., reported last week that someone entered his auto, parked in the rear yard, and stole a 12-gauge single-shot shotgun in a case, valued at $78.

Nab 4 here in armed robbery

Four men were taken into custody Thursday in Granite City after an armed robbery at 5 a.m. that day at Ed's Standard service station, Chain of Rocks Road and Illinois Route 111. Felony charges are to be sought.

An attendant at the station was robbed of $500 by a group of men and at least one of the robbers was armed with a gun, Randy Rushing of the Illinois Division of Criminal Investigation said. The station employee was not injured.

A blue 1975 auto was reported stolen at 10:20 a.m. Thursday by its owner, an Illinois Avenue man, who said it had been taken between 2:30 and 9:30 a.m. He told Granite City officers he had spent the night at the home of another man residing on Dewey Avenue.

The car meanwhile was seen in this area by a Madison County sheriff deputy, who noted that it matched a description of the getaway vehicle. Deputies, Granite City police, DCI agents and Illinois state police cooperated in the investigation.

The owner of the auto was questioned after it was recovered by state troopers, and admitted that the theft report was false. The Dewey Avenue resident and another man were arrested by local police in the Dewey area at 12:15 p.m. to aid the DCI.

The fourth suspect was picked up by Granite City police at 1:20 p.m. Thursday at a service station here, and the quartet was released to DCI agents at 1:50 p.m.

BURGLARS GET INTO CENTRAL HARDWARE

Merchandise was being inventoried today at Central Hardware in Crossroads Plaza Shopping Center following a burglary, reported at 10:50 a.m. Sunday by Ken Campbell, manager.

Initially discovered to be missing were two black and white "pop up" televisions and a video recorder.

The intruders entered the store through a vent leading to a stockroom. Items in a glass case, containing stereo and radio equipment, had been moved, it was noted. The televisions were taken from adjacent shelves.

FILLING A NEED. Madison aldermen fill Christmas baskets for the needy of the city. The Madison City Organization's ladies group donated money for the upcoming city election, but the candidates voted to use part of the money to help the needy at Christmas. Charge GC man in New Year's Eve fatal stabbing in Indiana

A preliminary charge of murder has been filed against Danny R. Davis, 30, Granite City, in connection with a fatal stabbing at a New Year's Eve party in Mount Vernon, Ind., according to sources there. (There may be more than one Danny Davis of Granite City, but a specific address was unavailable this morning.)

Davis allegedly stabbed Henry Eugene Miller, 23, of Mount Vernon, about 3:30 a.m. Saturday with what appeared to be a steak knife. Miller died at Deaconess Hospital in Evansville, Ind., about 6:30 a.m. Saturday.

Another of the partygoers, Brian Howard, 22, Mount Vernon, suffered a stab wound during the altercation.

VENICE DUI CHARGE

A charge of driving while under the influence of alcohol was filed by Venice police at 6:35 p.m. Thursday in the 1200 block of Klein Street against William Cooper, 67, St. Louis. In an unrelated case at 10 p.m. Saturday, Venice officers charged Eddie L. Welch, 31, Chicago, with driving while his license was suspended, property damage, resisting arrest, battery and disorderly conduct.

Lavenia Galloway

Mrs. Lavenia M. (Meacham) Galloway, 71, of 424 N. Meacham Road, died at 7:15 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 30, 1982, at her home. She had been ill for several days and had been under a doctor's care. She was pronounced dead by Deputy Coroner William Sternberg.

A native of Waverly, Ill., she lived here 40 years. Her husband, Marshall Galloway, died in 1964.

She is survived by a daughter, Mrs. James (Marsha) Chomko of Granite City; one brother, Lendell Meacham of Granite City; and two grandchildren.

A memorial mass is set for 10 a.m. Tuesday, Jan. 4, 1983, at St. Elizabeth Catholic Church, Pontoon and Johnson roads. Private burial will be at Sunset Hill Cemetery. Arrangements were made by Irwin Chapel for Funerals, Granite City. Memorials may be sent to the American Heart Association or the Animal Protective Association.

RING, GUNS STOLEN

A burglar who forced open a door took a $400 diamond ring, a 20 gauge shotgun worth $300, a $60 semi-automatic 22-caliber rifle and a 22 rifle valued at $40 from the Robert Peters residence, 2310 Illinois Ave., authorities were told Thursday.

No holiday for New Year's burglars

New Year's was no holiday for Quad-City area burglars, who took advantage of families on vacation or temporarily away from home. Business places also were break-in targets.

A Madison High School window was broken Thursday by an intruder who entered the office of Coach Larry Graham and stole six basketballs and a number of Trojan basketball uniform shirts and shorts.

A burglar who removed a door lock obtained a color television set from the Christian Trice apartment at 210 Weaver St., Venice, Thursday evening. The Madison Mortuary Shop, 1007 Madison Ave., Madison, was looted of items worth more than $3,000 Thursday night, including 20 leather jackets worth $100 each, ten leather wallets valued at $20 apiece, ten $25 leather tote bags for tools, ten $15 motorcycle hats and a cabinet containing tools. Entry was gained by breaking a window.

At 2:25 a.m. Friday, New Year's Eve, a man entered the Hayes apartment, 113 Garesche Homes, Madison, but fled when he was discovered by family members.

A man, 19, caught inside Earl's Sporting Goods store, 19th Street and Cleveland Blvd., at 7:40 p.m. Friday, was detained for questioning. Police and store officials determined that a shotgun, binoculars, a metal detector and two knives had been moved inside the building.

A burglar broke door glass at the Joseph Kubelka home, 1715 Elizabeth St., Madison, at 10:15 p.m. New Year's Eve and fled from pursuers without taking anything.

Schnucks' Market, 3801 Nameoki Road, was looted Friday night of 110 cartons of cigarettes having a wholesale value of $960. The burglar used a concrete block to break glass in a door.

On the same night, burglars ransacked and damaged the Forrest Boelling home, 1616 Sixth St., Madison, overturning a pool table and throwing the contents of upstairs rooms down a stairway into a hall. Entering by breaking a window, the intruders upset furniture, dumped out cabinet and dresser drawers, and pushed mattresses onto the floor. They also unplugged a refrigerator and freezer and left the food doors open.

As the new year approached, an intruder shattered a window at Granite Chrysler-Plymouth, 19th Street and Grand Avenue, and broke into an office to ransack desks. Unsuccessful efforts were made to open a safe and to pry open a soft drink machine.

A burglar ransacked the Shirley Sykes residence, 2524 Lincoln Ave., Friday night, removing furniture drawers and dumping their contents onto the floor. A list is being made of missing items. Entrance was gained by breaking door glass.

The Jerry Rosenberg home on Cleveland Blvd. was looted on New Year's Eve of a radio, a 32-caliber nickel-plated revolver, articles of jewelry and a pocketknife. A door was forced open.

As the year ended, a portable television set and a box of jewelry were taken by a burglar who broke door glass at the apartment of Inna Mathenia, 2250 State St. Police located a suspect whose comments enabled them to recover all that had been taken from the apartment.

It was discovered at 12:55 p.m. Saturday that the Clark service station at 2065 Madison Ave. had been burglarized. Glass was broken to obtain entry. Items taken are to be listed.

Also on New Year's Day, it was found that Marshall School had been entered by removing a window. A first grade room was vandalized, several hallway lockers were opened, interior windows were broken, office furniture was turned over and files were thrown about. One of the intruders suffered a cut that had been taken care of.

Between noon and 10:30 p.m. Saturday, a burglar broke door glass at the apartment of Robbie Arms at 1012 Iowa St., Madison. An inventory will be made but the man may have been frightened away before gathering any loot.

Family aids suspect

secutors try to prove that the kidnap goal was to obtain ransom money.

They are convinced the real objective was to spotlight the tragedy of thousands of potential lives being lost. As they see it, countless fetuses had no way to defend their right to life.

Along with concern over abortions, Anderson has been upset by his status as a fugitive since 1980 and by the 1981-82 illness of his mother, who died in April.

The Andersons separated in 1980 but Mrs. Anderson and the three children moved to Des Moines, Iowa, in 1981. The Andersons are now in the vicinity to be near the elder Mrs. Anderson, making it easier for her to see her grandchildren.

The defendant's family is worried that he may face severe punishment. It hopes to cite facts that might soften the court's attitude toward him.

It does not believe the trio intended to physically harm the Zevalloves. Those abducted were viewed as a symbol of the abortion issue rather than as direct enemies, the family contends.

Anderson has been provided with legal aid from the Sunset Hills Country Club member who discussed past events. The suspect's relatives now are busily trying to document the data.

They say Anderson obtained the information during his current jail stay.

Authorities are unaware of any past incidents that could affect the prosecution, and point out that it will be Anderson and the Moores on trial, not the kidnap victims.

Charges against the three men say they attempted to interfere with interstate commerce by violence or threats and also conspired to commit such interference.

No federal kidnap charges were filed because the doctor and his wife were not taken from a state line. They were detained at a former ammunition bunker east of Springfield and then were released near their home.

State's Attorney Don W. Weber at one time sought to obtain enough evidence to file state kidnap charges, but later said he believes the federal prosecution will be adequate.

Anderson's relatives are convinced of his innocence in a Houston, Texas, occurrence in November 1980 and they point to comments by FBI agents in which doubt was voiced about some of the circumstances.

Anderson had tried to purchase a home and had agreed to allow the former owner to rent it on a monthly basis, they related.

A disagreement developed over the continued tenancy. Although he felt the tenants were at fault, technicalities were cited.

The outcome was that Anderson was charged with and convicted of "executing a document by deception."

After the conviction, a six-week period was set for investigators to evaluate him and submit a recommendation on whether the judge should impose probation or order a prison term.

As the sentencing date approached, Anderson became more and more apprehensive and decided against waiting to hear the judge's decision. He left the Houston area and relocated to Springfield.

His comment at the time was that he did not intend to live by unfair rules. He voiced deep distrust of governmental processes.

Anderson is being defended by a St. Charles, Mo., attorney.

Although Mrs. Anderson is not an activist, she understands much of her husband's thinking and believes he was trying to act in accord with the will of God, even if laws enacted by men and women disagreed with his methods.

Material filed for the FBI in St. Louis during the abduction included a 44-page "decree of God" demanding a halt to all abortions and allegedly threatening the Zevalloves with death.

Anderson's wife has a copy of the "epistle" that he prepared and she is considering having it copyrighted.

The epistle does not mention a cash ransom but the indictment says one of the three men told the doctor they wanted "a quick $200,000 to $300,000." Many physicians are wealthy and the Zevalloves live in a neighborhood of expensive homes.

The trio apparently learned of the existence of Hope Clinic from advertisements in a Springfield newspaper. The Zevalloves name was obtained by reading information on the door of the clinic.

Services held for Mrs. Dixon

Funeral services were conducted at 1 p.m. Thursday at Mercer Chapel for Mrs. Essie M. Dixon, 68, Granite City, who died Dec. 29 at St. Joseph Hospital, Alton. She had been a patient at the Elder Care Nursing Home, Alton.

Burial took place at St. John Cemetery, Granite City. She is survived by one daughter and one son.

Doctors' Dialogue

Dear Doctor,
I am 55 years old. I have bronchial asthma, but since I don't have hospital insurance, I can't get good care. I don't have the money to go to the doctor's office and no one will give me medical advice over the telephone.

What can people like me do?

Dear V.H.:
From your question, I can see that you have two problems: One is that you feel that you are unable to get good care for your bronchial asthma; the other is that you do not have the money to pay for good care.

I cannot give you specific medical advice here because I would have to work from assumptions. One is that you do, indeed, have bronchial asthma. It is unusual, although not unheard of, for a person of your age to have bronchial asthma. You may have been diagnosed as having bronchial asthma when you were younger, but the most common cause of wheezing (often associated with bronchial asthma) in people of your age group is chronic obstructive lung disease. This disease is commonly called emphysema. This disease is caused by prolonged exposure to some form of irritant that is inhaled, such as cigarette smoke. Wheezing also may be a symptom of congestive heart failure.

As you might imagine, the treatment for each of these disorders, bronchial asthma, emphysema and congestive heart failure, are all quite different. Without careful examination and verification of the diagnosis, it would be unwise and a poor practice of medicine to try and treat someone over the telephone or in a newspaper column.

If you do have bronchial asthma, there are a number of new drugs and types of therapy available that I think you would find helpful. You would, of course, need to see a doctor for an examination in order to determine which of these would be best for you.

This brings us to your second problem, that of limited financial resources. You are fortunate to live in the state of Illinois. It is much easier for needy Illinois residents to get financial assistance than it is for people in other areas. I suggest that you contact the Illinois Department of Public Aid, explain your situation and find out if you are eligible for assistance with your medical bills.

In addition, there are multiple resources available to you, both at the local hospital (St. Elizabeth Medical Center) and through social agencies, including the American Lung Association.

DECORATIVE PLAQUE listing all names of master councilors since the inception of the James Stuart Chapter, Order of DeMolays, in 1921, is accepted by Master Councilor David T. Medley. Making the presentation is Mrs. Ruby Sullivan, junior past president of the DeMolay Mother's Club who donated the walnut plaque to the local chapter.

DeMolays presented with name plaque

The James Stuart Chapter, Order of DeMolay, was presented a walnut plaque listing the names of master councilors since the chapter was formed under Letters Temporary on May 24, 1921, as Granite City Chapter.

The plaque was presented, for the Mothers Club, to Master Councilor David T. Medley by the junior past president of the Mothers Club, Mrs. Ruby Sullivan at the Christmas party for Job's Daughters and DeMolays.

Hosted by the mothers of both organizations, the party was held at the Masonic Temple. Presents for the children at Shriners Hospital for Crippled Children were brought by DeMolays and Jobs and money was collected for the Salvation Army Christmas donation.

Following the party the regular DeMolay meeting was held. It was announced that the chapter would have a class of candidates on Tuesday, Jan. 4, fourth host the District 16 basketball tourney at the local Y.M.C.A. on Sunday, Jan. 16.

Steelers win first GCS holiday grappler tourney

By ROGER KRAMER

of the Press-Record

GRANITE CITY — Most area wrestling experts knew Granite City North would be among the four teams fighting for the Granite City South Holiday Invitational championship.

Nobody, including Steeler coach Walt Whitaker, thought for a moment that North would win its first tournament championship by 53 points, especially with caliber teams like Roxana, Hazelwood Central and Riverview Gardens competing with the Steelers.

Granite City North probably pulled off its most stupor victory in its 10-year history. The Steelers scored 237 points to easily win the 22nd annual tournament Wednesday.

Roxana was a distant second with 184 points. Hazelwood Central was third with 157 points. Riverview Gardens scored 144 points. Cahokia had 135 points for fifth, and Granite City South was sixth with 117½ points.

How easily did North win the 1982 tournament?

Even if the Steelers didn't win a single match in the championship and third place bouts and Roxana would have its five matches by pins, North still would have defeated the Steelers by 8½ points.

"A 53 point victory in this tournament is very surprising," Whitaker said.

"With the competition in this meet, you expect the meet to be extremely close."

Of course, North wasn't about to allow Roxana to get close. The Steelers had five wrestlers in the first place bouts. All five wrestlers finished first.

Colin Davis, North's 98 pound wrestler, pinned Hazelwood Central's Tom Russell in only 44 seconds. Davis' pin was the only pin in any of the championship bouts.

Both Davis and Roxana's Rob Milazzo at 119 had five pins during the tournament, the best efforts of the tournament. This was also the second straight year Davis won the 98 pound championship.

Jon Frangoulis, South's 167 pound wrestler, was winning through the first two rounds of his match with Jim Hardy of Hazelwood Central, but he suffered a knee injury with 25 seconds left in the second round.

Frangoulis tried to wrestle the third round, but Hardy tied the match at 11:11. Frangoulis' injury prevented him from wrestling in the overtime period.

South's Jeff Cotter lost to Don Carter of Roxana 8-3 in the third place match at 98. Mark Dowdy of the Warriors lost to Reggie Moore of McCluer North 7-3 in the 155 third place match, and Steve Klug of Riverview Gardens defeated South's Dave Brown 6-3 in the 185 third place bout.

Sean McGovern defeated Rob Powers of Jacksonville 14-9 in the fifth place bout at 112, and heavyweight Paul Hitchcock defeated Jim Brermann of Hazelwood Central 7-1 to win fifth place.

North's Bill Zimmer took third at 167 with a 7-0 victory over Stephen Decatur's Brian Perry. The match was tied going after six minutes, but Zimmer dominated the match during the overtime period.

North's Ken Patterson, who didn't wrestle in a single dual meet before the tournament, lost to Jim Harper of Hazelwood Central 11-4 in the third place match at 138.

Monte Kessler of North lost to Don Kochera 9-1 during an overtime period in the third place match at 145.

It was more than the efforts of those wrestlers which helped North win the title. North's Brent McKenney, who was injured before the start of Wednesday's session, was scheduled to have wrestled in the championship sessions.

Newcomer Brian Hayes finished sixth at 119 for North. Heavyweight John Kramer also made the championship session.

"This was going to be the team's Christmas present to me," Whitaker said. "They wanted to win this year because they had come so close in other years but ended up in second place."

Patterson and Hayes were the biggest surprises for North. Neither had wrestled in a dual meet before the tournament, but both made North's tournament squad by winning challenge matches.

On the other hand, the Warriors weren't nearly as fortunate in their efforts during the tournament.

Red Devils bomb New Athens for championship

Freeburg edges MELHS in quarterfinals

By ROGER KRAMER

of the Press-Record

FREEBURG — On paper, the Venice basketball team was the most unlikely team to win the Freeburg Holiday Tournament.

In fact, Venice basketball coach Ken Perkins is probably still amazed that the Red Devils won the tournament with a 65-45 victory over New Athens Thursday.

Although Venice was the top seed of the 16 team tournament, the Red Devils had a hard time getting to the finals.

Venice edged 16th seeded Chester by four points last Monday, defeated Marissa by three points the following day, and beat Freeburg 57-54 Wednesday in the tournament semi-finals.

Secondly, no one on the Red Devils' starting five exceeds 5-10. On the other hand, New Athens' starting line-up averaged 6-0.

So what was the difference in the game? Perkins doesn't quite know for sure, but everybody else knew what it was—speed.

"There was a lot of intimidation on our part. I don't understand how a 5-9 kid can intimidate a 6-4 kid, but that's what our kids did," Perkins said.

Venice point guard Eddie Salmond, who was named the most valuable player of the tournament, knew the answer.

"We have to be quick out there if we're going to win. We use a lot of quickness and get a lot of jumping to do what we do. You have to be quick when you're short," Salmond, a 5-8 junior, said.

New Athens coach Fred Blumberg also knew what a 5-9 kid can intimidate a 6-4 kid.

"Speed was the big factor. They got up and down the court quicker than what we had been used to seeing. I think the speed really bothered us," Blumberg said.

Speed was the big factor from the very start of the game. During the middle of the first quarter, New Athens missed seven consecutive shots because of Venice's box defense.

Although Venice could only take a two point lead during that time, it gave the Yellow Jackets a taste of what it would encounter the next quarter.

Venice, leading 10-0 at the end of the first quarter, took advantage of a long New Athens cold streak to jump to a 21-12 lead. New Athens only made one of 11 shots in the first 4½ minutes of the quarter.

New Athens was getting many shots inside, but Venice's pressure affected the inside shooting. In addition, the Red Devils were getting position inside and outrebounding the Yellow Jackets.

When Venice's defense wasn't beating the Yellow Jackets down the court, Venice's offense was. New Athens, knowing that all of the Red Devils can shoot the ball kept one man on each Red Devil.

Most teams Venice has encountered this season put two players on Salmond, the Yellow Jackets down the court. Venice's defense was. New Athens, knowing that all of the Red Devils can shoot the ball kept one man on each Red Devil.

Salmond took advantage of the defense and led Venice with 20 points.

By halftime, the Red Devils were ahead 31-18.

The start of the third quarter was almost a repeat of the second quarter. New Athens took only six shots in the first three minutes of the quarter and made only one of them.

Meanwhile, Venice increased its lead to 39 points, 39-20, before New Athens could score again.

"It was like—Boom!—we got out in front, and they couldn't hit the basket," Perkins said.

Blumberg was perplexed about the lack of shooting on New Athens' part. "I don't know why we couldn't make them inside. We put up the shots, but they wouldn't go in. It was our worst shooting night of the season. It proves that even if you're larger than the other team, the other team can still beat you if they're quicker."

In the fourth quarter, Venice had as much as a 27-point lead before Perkins put in the reserves to finish the game.

When Venice's defense wasn't beating the Yellow Jackets down the court, Venice's offense was. New Athens, knowing that all of the Red Devils can shoot the ball kept one man on each Red Devil.

Salmond took advantage of the defense and led Venice with 20 points.

"I was surprised they didn't double-team Salmond," Perkins said. "We like to give it to Salmond every second or third pass, and they were letting us get the ball to him. They let him have the 25-foot shot, and he's deadly from that distance."

William Watts, who was named to the all-tournament team, added 15 points for the Red Devils.

Don Moeser scored 10 points, best for the Yellow Jackets.

Venice, after the victory, is 10-0 for the season. Perkins really didn't expect Venice to be perfect at this point in the season.

"With what we had returning and our lack of size, I really thought we would be 7-3 or 6-4 or at best 9-2 at this point in the season. We were still had an unknown quality at the start of the season, but we have played some good basketball," Perkins said.

New Athens is 8-2 for the season.

VENICE 57

FREEBURG 54

Venice had to show its ability to come from behind against the host Midgets.

The Red Devils were trailing 14-9 after one quarter, but Venice gradually came back to lead 45-41 after three quarters.

Freeburg stayed with the Devils until the end, but the third-seeded Midgets couldn't quite pull the upset.

Venice made 17 of 26 free throw attempts in the game.

"We had to play very good ball to get past Chester, Marissa and Freeburg. All three of those teams caused us problems," Perkins said.

Salmond led the Red Devils with 18 points, and Watts added 14 points.

Perry Schneider led Freeburg with 14 points, Paul Vollmer had 11 points and Rusty Braunsell added 11 points for the Midgets.

Waterloo Gihault defeated Freeburg 66-44 in the third place game. Plasa Southwestern pinned Marissa 40-39 in the fourth place game on a last-second lay-up by Craig Fry. Columbia defeated Red Bud 65-54 in the consolation championship.

Steelers defeat Mascoutah for first season win

By MICHAEL BARTELS

of the Press-Record

BREESE — To say that this season is rapidly becoming a frustrating experience for coach Bill Ohlendorf and his Granite City North Steelers would perhaps be the understatement of the year. Things just continue to go wrong.

Three days before the opening of the starting point guard Art Williams broke his ankle in practice. He is probably out for the remainder of the season.

Four weeks ago, starter Brian Levin underwent orthoscopic surgery on torn cartilage on his left knee.

The Steelers went to the tournament with the distant hopes of repeating the amazing 1979 campaign that saw the winless Steelers enter the tournament, win four games, and walk away with the title. However, this was not the year for such heroics.

The Steelers did manage to pick up their first victory of the season, beating Mascoutah in the first round of the tournament, 54-51, but dropped the next two by large margins to two of the favored teams in the tournament, number one seeded Okawville, 76-39, and number three O'Fallon, 71-49.

The victory over the Indians of Mascoutah on Monday was an upset of sorts, as Mascoutah was heavily favored over the winless Steelers.

The key to the game according to

Granite North Steelers

Ohlendorf was stopping star guard, senior Rob Flanagan. "If we did a good job containing him, we could let the rest go," Coach Ohlendorf said. He continued, saying "We had to slow the game down, hold them inside. We had to deal with their kind of pressure." Flanagan was held to 8 points.

Sam Tate, a 5'10" junior was called on to take over for the injured Williams, and did a commendable job, having little varsity experience to call on.

The Indians had a different idea as to the outcome of the game as they came out in the fourth quarter with their own full-court pressure, forcing three quick turnovers, and the Steeler led to only three points.

Ohlendorf called time-out and must have talked to his players about poise. The Steelers came back to the floor, moving the ball quickly against the pressure, scoring easily on the ben press.

The Steelers held on to the lead, trading baskets with Mascoutah, and walked out of the gym with their first victory of the season.

Brian Levin led the Steelers with 14 points and Scott Cant and Darin Depew both hit 13. Cant also gathered a game high 11 rebounds. Steve Trittschuh and Sam Tate hit eight points each. The Steeler starters were the only ones to score.

North took on the Okawville triple towers of six-foot-five inch Paul Jansen, six-foot-six inch Keith Luchtefeldt and six-foot-four inch Chuck Deering, the story was completely different.

The Steelers were never in the contest, being intimidated by the Rockets early in the game. Behind at the end of the first quarter, 18-4. The key figure in the early attack of Okawville was senior guard Todd Schwankhaus, hitting for 14 points in the first half, mostly from the perimeter, destroying the potential effectiveness of a Steeler zone defense. The one-two punch of Okawville, shooting and size, was too much for North as they dropped the contest, 76-39.

Brian Levin led the Steelers with 10 points and the sophomore center, Scott Cant, fared well with Okawville on the boards pulling down 10 caroms, but was held scoreless.

Okawville center Paul Jansen led the Rockets with 23 points followed by zone-buster Schwankhaus with 22, including five assists.

The defeat put the Steelers in the running for fifth place, having to play highly touted O'Fallon Wednesday evening. O'Fallon came off an eight point defeat at the hands of Nashville, which featured a six point play including a public bench technical.

The Steelers looked good in the early going with sophomore center Scott Cant turning an offensively minded first quarter with eight points. North

In Centralia

Trojans defeat Marist

Warrior cagers drop first two games

By ALAN L. GERSTENECKER
Sports Editor
of the Press-Record

CENTRALIA — The Madison Trojans may not have had the kind of success they did in 1980, but when the 40th annual Centralia Holiday Basketball Tournament concluded Wednesday, there was still reason for celebration.

In 1980, Larry Graham's Trojans defeated Mt. Vernon 72-61 to win the Centralia Holiday Tournament. That was also the year that the Trojans won the Class A state championship.

Wednesday, the Trojans, a team which did not seed in the top eight of the tournament, defeated Chicago-Marist 66-60 for third place.

Madison began the tournament with a first round 69-51 victory over Louisville (Kentucky) Southern, then shocked everyone when they knocked off seeded East St. Louis Senior 68-64 in quarterfinal action. In semifinal action, the Trojans lost to Benton 63-44, the eventual tournament champions.

"I'm happy with the outcome," said Madison coach Larry Graham after the Marist game. "We finished third in one of the state's most competitive holiday tournaments."

After the quarterfinal game against Benton, Graham said he was concerned about his team's performance against Benton. He said he was particularly worried about his team's inability to work the ball inside. After the Marist game, however, Graham felt differently.

"By gosh we played pretty well," Graham said. "You've got to remember that we're playing teams with considerably more talent to draw from," he said.

Madison had the smallest enrollment of any school in the tournament, 422. Only three schools had enrollment less than 1,000: Madison, Benton (735) and Salem (931).

WARRIORS DROP TWO

Although Madison had first and second round success with Louisville Southern and East St. Louis Senior, Granite City South was not as fortunate.

In game seven Monday, the Warriors fell to host Centralia 70-54, and later, in consolation play, lost to Union (Kentucky) County 72-51.

Although South lost both of its games and remains winless this season, the Warriors did not exit the tournament unnoticed.

After first round action, South's John Linhart was the tournament's second leading rebounder, trailing only Centralia's Ben Willis.

"John owns the boards out there," said Warrior coach Don Deterding. "He's the quarterback out there."

Linhart, who managed 12 rebounds, proved his offensive value since rejoining the starting lineup as he managed 12 points in first round action. Linhart's scoring efforts were only surpassed by his cousin, Pat Linhart, who managed 15 points in the opening game.

Despite the effort of the Linharts, Deterding thought his team lacked cohesiveness.

"There's not much to say," he said. "We didn't do anything right out there tonight."

"We lack cohesiveness and confidence once we take the court," Deterding said. "To see us at practice you'd think we'd be undefeated at this point. I don't know what we're going to do."

Although the Warriors lost their second and final game of the tournament to the Union County Braves, Deterding was happier with his team's performance.

"Although we lost, this game was not a total loss," he said. "I saw some improvement passing this game," Deterding said.

If nothing else, the tournament gave Deterding the opportunity to view all his players in action. Against the Braves, Deterding played everyone. And as anticipated, there were some surprises.

"We got everybody in," Deterding said. "In doing so, I must say I was particularly pleased with Tom Paul, Paul and Gary Apperson both played a good game."

"Pat Linhart was South's leading scorer of the tournament with 38 points. "Pat played probably his best third quarter of the season tonight (against Union County)," Deterding said.

The Warriors, 0-9, resume action this Friday, Jan. 7, when they take on neighboring Roxana in Roxana Junior varsity action begins at 6:15 p.m.

MADISON TOO QUICK

Madison's quickness was something every opponent at the tournament had to reckon with. The Trojans gave Louisville a taste of that quickness early as they dashed to a 26-4 first quarter lead in the opening game.

Madison showed its pace for the remainder of the game, but still managed to win by 18 points. Madison's Leroy Pryor was the game's leading scorer with 19 points.

Against East St. Louis Senior, Madison appeared to be in trouble late in the second quarter. The Trojan's slim point first quarter lead slipped away by halftime as the Flyers took a 37-25 lead.

With 4:01 remaining in the third quarter, the Trojans slipped 21 points behind, 52-31. Things looked dismal for the Madison.

But just when statisticians were about to fill in their brackets with the Flyers as the winners, the Trojans began whittling away at the East St. Louis lead. With 1:28 remaining in the game, Madison's John Hughes scored to tie the game at 62. The Flyers never led again. The rest is history. The Trojans went on to win 68-64.

Against Benton, Madison experienced a let down. Benton went on to take the Trojans 63-44. Trojan center Keith Wyatt summed it up best. "I guess we looked right past Benton to the championship game. We underestimated them," Wyatt said.

The Trojans recovered nicely to defeat Chicago-Marist for third place. Madison is in action again this Friday as they travel to Assumption to take on the Pioneers. Jayvee action begins at 6:30 p.m.

SIUE cagers meet Mules

By AL BARNES
For the Press-Record

The Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville varsity basketball team will return to the hardwood court this week when they travel to Central Missouri State U. at Warrensburg, Mo., tomorrow night (Tuesday, Jan. 4) to take on the Mules in a return engagement. Earlier, at SIUE, the Cougars won their Dec. 8 meeting at Edwardsville, 66-54.

Coach Tom Pugliese's SIUE quintet is now 6-9, but the future for Cougar basketball has never looked brighter than it does now: the Cougars fresh from a first-time ever victory (67-64) over NCAA division I St. Louis U. in an opening round contest in the first annual Budweiser Holiday Classic at Kiel Auditorium last week in St. Louis are really optimistic about the final 11 games on their schedule.

Their feeling of confidence, despite their last minutes loss to the tournament champion East Tennessee State Bucs, 52-56, is very understandable.

The intense, second-year SIUE coach, Pugliese, feels he has his charges believing in themselves and with a good chance of registering the school's first winning cage season in ten years.

Hughes is named to tourney's 2nd team

John Hughes, Madison High's 5-foot-8 point guard, was named to the second all-tournament team of the Centralia Tournament Wednesday. Hughes, a senior, paced the Trojans to a third place finish in the prestigious holiday classic.

"Players were named to the team by coaches and media personnel,"

Joining Hughes on the second team were Edwardsville's Mark Bradford, Centralia's Ben Willis, Union (Kentucky) County's Wendy Garnett, and Belleville West's Randy Roschmafsky.

First all-tournament team included three members of the Benton team, the tournament champions.

Benton's Bruce Baker, who was named the tournament's most valuable player, was the first team center. Joining Baker on the first team are teammates Mark Peters and Kyle Herrin. The final two athletes named to the first team included Mt. Vernon's Eric Hawthorne and Homewood-Flossmoor's Steve Tierney.

Mt. Vernon finished second in the tournament, while Homewood-Flossmoor defeated Edwardsville for the consolation championship.

held a slim 18-14 lead at the end of the first stanza.

In the second quarter, O'Fallon proved they could shoot as well as anyone, scoring 24 points in the quarter, going into the locker room at half with a 14 point lead. But the game wasn't over yet.

In the third quarter, the Steelers came out looking for blood, scoring quickly, resuming their tenacious defense, cutting the lead to seven points with the ball in hand. Three quick turnovers against the O'Fallon press and a couple of bad shots put the Steelers back down by 12, ending any hopes of another victory.

Elk's sponsor hoop shoot

Local competition for the 11th annual Elks Hoop Shoot, the national free throw shooting contest for youngsters age 8 through 13, will be held at Grigsby Junior High School, Jan. 8, starting at 10 a.m.

Almost three million youngsters from throughout the country enter the last year's competition for boys and girls in age categories 8-9; 10-11; and 12-13. Each contestant has 25 shots at the hoop. The boy and girl in each age group with the best scores advance through four tiers of competition to qualify for the national finals at Indianapolis, Ind. in March.

Local winners will compete against other contestants in the regional event in Centralia, July 15.

Names of the national winners will be inscribed on the Elks National "Hoop Shoot" plaque, on permanent display in the Naamith Memorial Basketball Hall of Fame in Springfield, Mass.

The course is free and is a requirement to obtain a hunting license in Illinois and other states.

Completion of this course is recognized in all states.

For further information persons should call 877-8729.

VFW sponsor safety course

Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 1300 and the Town and Country Gun Club Inc. will sponsor a Illinois Department of Conservation hunter safety course on Saturday, Jan. 22, from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. at the V.F.W. Post, 2044 Washington Ave., Granite City.

New dam, many areas saved as Corps wins its flood fight

The pre-Christmas flood alert of 1982 affected many Quad-Cityans and for a time the waters threatened Chouteau Island.

In a summary this week, the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, St. Louis District, noted that it activated a special 24-hour Emergency Operations Center (EOC) in downtown St. Louis on Dec. 3, in response to National Weather Service forecasts of flooding on area rivers.

Three EOC field command posts were opened by the Corps on Dec. 3 and 4, at Elsberry, Jacksonville and Cape Girardeau, with headquarters also at Arnold, Crystal City, Ste. Genevieve, Granite City and River des Peres. The EOC headquarters remained open until Dec. 16.

The Corps supported the flood fight with 242 employees, 60 motor vehicles, eight river vessels, 44 pumps, six portable generators, 17,600 work hours and $1.5 million estimated cost.

The Corps issued to public and private flood-fighters nearly two million sandbags.

Also, for patching levees, 67,000 square yards of plastic sheeting and 31,000 square yards of wooden-lath snowfence were dispensed.

Other extraordinary measures taken by the Corps as the rivers continued to rise included the following:

The Corps closed navigation on Dec. 3 Mississippi River Lock No. 24 (Clarksville, Mo.) and No. 25 (Wentzville, Mo.) to prevent damage to the lock gates, and to lessen damage to river banks and levees.

Locks 24 and 25 were reopened to some traffic in daylight hours Dec. 10 and to all traffic Dec. 11.

On Dec. 6, at the Corps' request, the Coast Guard closed the Mississippi River from the upper Chain of Rocks Canal, Lock 27, Granite City, to Lock and Dam 26, at Alton. The Coast Guard had closed the St. Louis Harbor on Dec. 4.

Closure of the Mississippi from Granite City to Alton shut off traffic past the new Lock and Dam 26 (Replacement), where construction is under way two miles downstream of the existing Lock and Dam 26.

Through October 1982, $148 million had been spent on the new Lock and Dam 26-R, including $118 million of construction and about $30 million of engineering, land estate and supervisory administration.

As the river continued to rise, the Corps sought to reduce stress against the wall of the cofferdam, built as first-phase construction at the new Lock and Dam 26. By halting river traffic past the cofferdam, the Corps removed the stress of wake action, and erased the danger of towboats and other vessels losing control in swift flow and eddies, and possibly crashing into the cofferdam.

The cofferdam wall reaches elevation 439 feet. The river upstream on the cofferdam crested at 427.8 feet on Dec. 7.

As precautionary steps, the Corps removed equipment from inside the 25-acre cofferdam, deliberately filled the enclosure with water to the 380-foot level, and added 18-inches of sand and plastic net to the upstream and river legs of the cofferdam.

Had the wall been in imminent danger of overtopping, the Corps would have filled it all the way, equalizing the levels to prevent scouring by overflow.

A major stream-control feature was the Clarence Cannon Dam, now under construction on the Salt River. Although it is not scheduled for closure until fall 1983, the Cannon Dam held back enough water to lower the Mississippi flood crest by a foot or more, engineers calculate.

This difference proved to be significant at the Lock and Dam 26 (Replacement), at Chouteau Island, at Kaskaskia Island, and at Miller City.

Meanwhile, the Coast Guard closed the Mississippi to traffic at Corps request on Dec. 7 from Mile 28 (Buffalo Island) to Mile 125 (Ste. Genevieve).

The river gauge reading at Chester (Mile 110) was 38 feet (it was to crest Dec. 9 at 39.5 feet). And the Corps sought to prevent action on the Miller City Levee (Miles 28 to 38) and the Kaskaskia Island Levee (Miles 110 to 115), where the crest stage was critical.

The Mississippi crested at 37.21 (flood stage, 36 feet) Dec. 7 at St. Louis (the previous record on any date in December, 29 feet on Dec. 31, 1922), and at 43.6 (flood stage, 32) Dec. 9 and 10 at Cape Girardeau.

The Mississippi River was reopened gradually, with only traffic upstream north of the cofferdam and downstream south of Ste. Genevieve allowed first.

Other restrictions were selectively applied at various locations, including no-wake speeds, and/or daylight traffic only.

The Mississippi was reopened to all traffic on Dec. 12. The Kaskaskia River Lock was closed from Dec. 4 to 14.

The Illinois River, closed since Dec. 7 from Mile 9 (near Grafton) to Mile 80 (north of Meredosia), reopened to minimum-wake traffic northbound Dec. 19 and southbound on Dec. 20.

The flood fight '82 focused on many areas. Some of the other more dramatic activity included:

—The Illinois River area. Landslides developed Dec. 12 in a levee at Barlow Lake, along McGeen Creek (Mile 70), and in the Little Creek Levee. Repairs were accomplished with sandbags, snowfence and other materials. Eight thousand acres were flooded when the Hartwell Levee (Mile 40) overtopped and was breached.

—Cape Girardeau area. Emergency contracts were awarded for $100,000 of work on the Miller City Levee at $25,000 for repair of a caving bank. This levee held during the flood. Interior flooding from seepage or rain submerged 14,000 acres at the Degonia Levee (Mile 90, north from Cairo, Ill.); 8,500 acres at Grand Tower (Mile 30); 2,000 acres at Clear Creek and 2,500 at East Cape.

Seepage occurs when soil becomes saturated, and pressure behind levees causes water to ooze from the ground inside levee-protected areas.

—Meramec River. This basin is unprotected by Corps levees or other projects. Flooding was widespread, and resident evacuation was extensive. Hundreds of homes were flooded.

Corps flood fight efforts included technical assistance and advice. As in other areas, sandbags, plastic sheeting and snowfence were provided. Corps personnel were on site at Arnold, and in areas from Pacific to Fenton.

The Meramec crested Dec. 5 at Pacific at 12.8 feet above flood stage, 3.4 feet higher than the 1945 record.

At Eureka, it exceeded the 1945 record by four feet — 20.9 feet above flood stage — on Dec. 6.

Valley Park's crest Dec. 6 was 25 feet over flood stage, surpassing the 1915 record by 3.1 feet. Arnold set a new record Dec. 7, topping the 1973 figure by five feet, 19.9 feet over flood stage.

While the Meramec reached record levels, the volume of water flowing in the Meramec was not a record. Housing and other construction within the flood plain has channelized the river into a narrower path, leaving it nowhere to go but up, resulting in higher crest levels and more rapid runoff concentration.

—Kaskaskia Island: 4,000 acres of the 10,000 enclosed by 14.8 miles of levees on this historic site — it was the State of Illinois' first capital were covered by seepage water.

The levees met the challenge. Aided by a prolonged effort by sandbagging volunteers, they remained intact and protected the island from the flooding Mississippi River. As a safety precaution, however, the 300 residents of Kaskaskia Island were evacuated Dec. 6 and, while the river was near crest levels, remained away until about Dec. 15.

—Madison and St. Clair counties area. Seepage and rainfall caused some interior flooding at Chouteau Island, Dupo, Harrisonville, Prairie du Rocher and Fort Charles, even though levees held and prevented river flooding.

Thirty families who live on the 2,400-acre Chouteau Island, adjacent to the Chain of Rocks Canal, were evacuated Dec. 4 and 5, based on projected flood crests. About 300 acres, including some interior roads, were submerged due to interior flooding by seepage. Levee remained intact and prevented river flooding.

—Elsberry area. Breaches occurred in private levees — Schramm, Portoccheck, Bush and Marstam. The Corps awarded a $600 emergency contract for fill-in on a private levee at Winfield.

—River des Peres. The Corps pumped seepage water from behind levees, assisted with sandbagging, and maintained a 24-hour patrol from Dec. 4 to 10.

In the aftermath of the flooding, the St. Louis Engineer District provided 37 employees to assist with damage assessments in nine counties in Missouri and 10 counties in Illinois.

On request from the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA), Region VII (Kansas City), the Corps made preliminary estimates of damage in Missouri counties along the Mississippi and Meramec rivers.

In Illinois, the Corps' estimates were along the lower Illinois River for FEMA, Region V (Chicago). Estimates were based on first-hand observation.

Corps engineers also have surveyed damage to levees, and data is being compiled. Private levee districts may apply in writing to the Corps for assistance with their levee repairs.

MAN ARRESTED

ON MADISON AVE.

Donald Mitchell, 40, of Cahokia and Odessa, Texas, was arrested and charged with illegal transportation of alcohol, speeding and driving while under the influence of alcohol last week after he allegedly drove at a high rate of speed southbound on Madison Ave.

Officers followed the southbound vehicle, from Fourth Street to the 200 block of Madison Avenue, where the driver was stopped. Officers alleged finding two half full bottles of beer on the floorboard of the car.

Mitchell agreed to take a breathalyzer test when taken to the police station. He was released after posting $302 cash bail with notice to appear Jan. 28 in Granite City court.

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd West

60th anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. West

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd West of Granite City, were guests of honor at a surprise party marking their 60th wedding anniversary given by their children, last week, at Duff's Restaurant in Alton.

Hosting the social event were Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth West and Mildred West, all of Granite City, Mr. and Mrs. Ora Fostee of Paragould, Ark., Mr. and Mrs. Duane Goode of Kirkland, Wash., and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Fostee of Rochester, N.Y.

The honorees also have 19 grandchildren and 15 great-grandchildren.

Mr. West, formerly of Arkansas, and his wife Lora, were married on Dec. 23, 1922 in the home of Elder J. R. Lavellen of Walnut Grove, Ark.

They have made their home in this area for 25 years and are members of the Church of Christ, here.

Mr. West retired in 1964 from Standard Pipe Protection Co., of Brentwood, Mo.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Thomason

Mr., Mrs. Thomason marks anniversary

A dinner party was given at the Community Service Club of the Granite City Army Installation by the children of Mr. and Mrs. Charles David (Ruby May) Thomason of 615 Filmore Ave., Venice, in observance of their 60th wedding anniversary.

Mr. Thomason and his wife, the former Ruby May Johnson of Granite City, were married in St. Louis on Dec. 17, 1922. They were attended by former Granite Cityans, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford (Sadie) Warren.

The honorees are the parents of nine living children, one son Melvin Wayne died in 1942 at the age of 14 months.

They have four sons, James Edward of Salem, Mo., Russell Dale of Cuba, Mo., Kenneth David of Fayetteville, Wash., and Charles Aaron of Burbon, Mo., and five daughters, Mrs. Betty Billick of Venice, Mrs. Janie Lou Reynolds, Hartford, Ill., Mrs. Robert (Leeann) Campbell of Owensville, Mo., Mrs. Raymond (Mary Jo) Stratton and Mrs. Gerald (Georgia) Berger, both of Granite City.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomason also have 32 grandchildren and 39 great-grandchildren.

Following the 1 p.m. buffet dinner entertainment was provided by Miss Gwen Stratton of Mableton, Ga., a granddaughter who is a former local county western singer. She presently is working and performing in the Atlanta, Ga. area.

A table centerpiece, corsage and boutonniere, treated with yellow silk roses and white baby's breath, were presented to the guests of honor.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomason received anniversary greetings from President and Mrs. Ronald Reagan and from Congressman Melvin Price and a card from the town of Patterson, Ill., signed by over 20 families with a gift check enclosed. Mr. Thomason was the former mayor of Patterson for several years and is a retired local truck driver.

He is 79 years of age and his wife is 76.

Children of the couple who attended the festivities were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Thomason and children Lucie and Richard, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Thomason, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Stratton and daughter Jolene and Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Berger and children, Kimberly and Anthony of Meadowbrook, Ill., Matthew Stratton of Millington, Tenn., and Clyde Evans of Baltimore, Md.

Local guests were Chaplain Fred Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Dunlap and daughter, Stephanie, Mrs. Shirley Travis and children, Cassandra, Michael and Tracy, Tim and Long, Mrs. Minnie Thomason, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Thomason and daughters, Nancy and Frances, Mrs. Pamela Benefield, Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Kimworthy and son Bruce, and Robert and Michael Kitchell.

An autobiography on Benjamin Franklin featuring an introduction by Henry Steele Commager and illustrations by Thomas Hart Benton, was presented by Terri Guldage at a meeting of Precipiter Beta Gamma of Beta Sigma Sorority.

Mrs. Barbara J. Jones entertained the group in her home 2708 Sunset Drive.

President Carol Cathey presided over the business segment with Terri Guldage giving the secretaries report and Pat Tsigiolaroff submitting the treasurer's report.

Marilyn Lumpkins gave a review of the Sorority City Council meeting and presented a letter with permission to confer the Laureate Degree. Vice-President Delores Dorich added that all material was mailed to International in conjunction with conferring the degree.

Chapter members brought grocery items and paper products to the meeting and they were added to a holiday basket to be given to a needy family. Service Chairman Linda Koenig announced she also purchased a used and other items and delivered the basket before Christmas.

During the holiday week members took gift wrapped articles to a dinner meeting at the Hyde Park Bissell House which were later used to fill Christmas stockings for Mrs. Roy Farr and Mrs. Marie Lumpkins, residents of nursing homes.

The hostess served a dessert course, after the session, to Mrs. Cathey; Mrs. Dorich, Evelyn Tolliver, Mrs. Tsigiolaroff, Miss Lumpkins, Martha Jean Dyer, Miss Guldage and Mrs. Koenig.

Service couple returns home

First Lieutenant and Mrs. David (Diane) Fuzessary were house guests during the holiday week at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank (Julia) Fuzessary, 1430 Madison Ave.

Enroute home the service couple also visited at the home of Mrs. Fuzessary's parents in Dayton, Ohio. Lt. Fuzessary is stationed with the Marine Air Wing at Camp Lejeune, N.C. In several months Lt. Fuzessary expects to be promoted to the rank of captain and will continue as a professional Marine Corps officer.

Bethel Chapel revival starts

A revival will begin at Bethel Chapel Pentecostal Church, 25th Street and Ohio Avenue, on Wednesday, Jan. 5, featuring Evangelists Geraldine and Phyllis Corzine.

The guest speakers are well known evangelists throughout the country and they will minister with song and sermons nightly at 7:30, according to the Rev. Clifton Gailher, host pastor.

Miss Geraldine Corzine will play the guitar for the special religious song session and services on Sunday will be at 7 p.m., the pastor added.

John Gorrell and Rhonda Broadwater

Gorrell-Broadwater

The engagement of Miss Rhonda L. Broadwater and John "Jay" W. Gorrell Jr., is being announced by their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jerry R. Broadwater Sr., 4017 Sara St., and Mr. and Mrs. John W. Gorrell Sr., 619 Fleming St.

Miss Broadwater graduated from Granite City High School North in 1981, attended the University of Missouri at Rolla, Mo., for a year and is now a sophomore student at Belleville Area College. She also is employed at Central Hardware.

Her fiancé is a junior student at the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign and is a part time employee of the food service project on campus. He was graduated from North High School in 1981.

The engaged couple and their families are completing plans for a March 25 wedding to take place at Trinity United Methodist Church. After their wedding they plan to attend the U of I.

Holiday activities of local chapter

Nu Zeta Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority, kept a busy schedule for the month of December in an effort to assist needy families in the area.

Members created hand-made crafts which were sold at two separate craft fairs and the chapter also sponsored a program to have Santa visit at various homes at a nominal cost. Proceeds from both ventures were used to continue the chapters charitable projects.

The annual Christmas party for members was held in the home of Mrs. Marcee Johnson. The group exchanged gifts and were served holiday refreshments.

Mr., Mrs. Pieper name son Thomas

Mr. and Mrs. Alan (Kathleen) Pieper, 2432 St. Clair Ave., are announcing the birth of a boy on Dec. 26 at St. Mary's Health Center in Richmond Heights, Mo.

The infant has been named Thomas Patrick and he weighed eight pounds, five ounces. He has a 5-year old sister, Anna and twin brother Kelly and sister, Karla who are three years old.

Grandparents include Mr. and Mrs. Ferd Pieper and Mr. and Mrs. Robert David, all of Granite City. Great-grandparents are Mrs. Elizabeth Dutchick and Mrs. Anna Buehrer, both of Granite City, and Lindell David of Kingman, Ariz.

Quad-City Chapter seeks new members

The Quad-City Chapter of the American Association of Retired Persons, Inc., are seeking new members who prefer to attend daytime meetings instead of night gatherings, according to an announcement at the monthly session conducted by President Virgil Worley.

In opening the members repeated the Lord's Prayer and pledge to the flag followed by officer reports.

The president accepted nominations for three new officers to be elected at the Jan. 26 meeting. He extended an invitation to eligible members to attend the next session set for 9:30 a.m. at Anchorage Recreation Hall.

Thirteen attended the meeting of the newly organized chapter and enjoyed a white elephant Christmas gift exchange. Homemade cookies and coffee was served during the social hour.

3 WARRANTS SERVED

Larry G. Sidwell, 34, of 2015 Washington Ave. was arrested on three traffic warrants in the 3000 block of Washington Avenue at 4:45 p.m. Friday. With him was Steven Muller, 30, of 2023 Bryan Ave., booked for driving Friday without a valid license.

Army Private Dana R. Emery, daughter of JoAnn Carr, 702 Bissell Ave., Venice, has completed basic training at Fort Dix, N.J. She is a 1979 graduate of Edwardsville Senior High School.

Captured after 4 cars damaged

Clifford Sanders, 23, Cheyenne, Wyo., staying at a local motel, was charged with driving the wrong way on Grand Avenue, leaving an accident scene, reckless driving, battery and improper license plates after four crashes that damaged four autos at 1:45 a.m. New Year's Day.

A Niedringhaus Avenue and Grand collision damaged the front of Keith Pears westbound truck and the left front of Sanders' southbound car.

Pears, who suffered minor injuries, is 25 and lives at 2826 Nameoki Road. When the motorist fled, Pears pursued him on Grand, 20th, Delmar, 18th, Niedringhaus, 19th and the 1900-block of Delmar, where the skidding auto hit the parked car of Donna Wyde, 3152 Boulder Avenue, and then bounced against the parked auto of Jerry Kendall, 1909A Delmar Ave.

As Pears fled the alleged hit-and-run driver against a lamp post at Niedringhaus and Delmar avenues while awaiting the arrival of police. Sanders allegedly struck him several times on the head. Sanders was freed at 5 p.m. Saturday on $204 bail.

Toddler, 2, struck by car

William P. Holt, 26 months old, of East St. Louis, was injured at 6:30 p.m. Sunday when he was struck by a vehicle on Washington Avenue, about 600 feet south of East 23rd Street. The impact knocked the youngster about 10 feet, reports stated.

The child apparently ran down a sloping driveway from the side of a residence at 2236 Washington Ave. in front of a car parked at the curb and into the path of an northbound auto, operated by Lester S. Sumpter, 57, of 20 E. 24th St.

William was taken by ambulance to St. Elizabeth Medical Center and later was transferred to Children's Hospital in St. Louis.

PURSE SNATCHING

FROM SHOPPING CART Debbie Turner, 2240 Nevada Ave., was taking her child out of a shopping cart in the K-Mart store parking area, preparing to place her in the car, when a man about 6 feet, 2 inches tall grabbed her purse out of the cart and ran toward Grubbs Tri-Mor Bowl, she told police at 1:05 p.m. Sunday. The incident occurred about 40 minutes earlier, she said.

The brown leather purse contained $20 cash, a wallet and miscellaneous papers. The purse snatcher wore a hooded black vinyl jacket and blue jeans, she said.

Animation, music for video series

A festival of animation and music is the theme for the winter video series at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville.

Ten programs are included in the series. The free shows are presented in the Video Lounge, which is located on the second floor of the University Center. Showtimes are Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays at 12:30 and 1:30 p.m.; Tuesdays and Thursdays at 10:30 and 11:30 a.m.; and Mondays and Tuesdays at 6:30 p.m.

Opening the series today through 7 is "The New Army" and "NFL Football Follies II." In "The New Army," the Ace Trucking Co., with the help of five lunatic recruits, shows the hilarious side to Army life.

The hilarious side of pro football is shown in "NFL Football Follies II." Excerpts of unusual plays highlight the sequel to the first football follies.

Other shows in the series include: Jan. 10 to 14, "Closed Mondays"; Jan. 17 to 21, "El Salvador, Another Vietnam?"; Jan. 24 to 28, "Mountain Music" and "Rockworld"; Jan. 31 to Feb. 4, "Bill Cosby on Prejudice" and "Jimi Hendrix, Rainbow Bridge" and Feb. 7 to 11, "WWW (Women of the World)" and "Rockworld."

Also Feb. 14 to 18, "Gladys Knight Label" and "Rockworld"; Feb. 21 to 25, "Claymation" and "Rockworld"; Feb. 28 to March 4, "The Selfish Giant" and "The Happy Prince" and March 7 to 11, "Rockworld."

For more information about the series, interested persons may contact the Student Program Board at 1-692-2617.

Holiday weight easy to shed

Putting on a few extra pounds during the holiday season may be inevitable, but people shouldn't panic and crash diet after the last "Auld Lang Syne." Instead, they should resume normal eating habits and their weight should drop to its original level.

That is the advice of Reza Kiani, M.D., associate professor of clinical medicine in the College of Medicine, University of Illinois at Chicago.

"Kiani said normal, healthy individuals of average weight will not gain more than a few pounds during the two-week holiday period in December.

"One pound is equivalent to 454 grams of fat," he said. "Considering each gram consists of nine calories, one would have to eat an extra 2,700 calories a day for 14 days in order to gain 10 pounds during the holiday period. To add 20 pounds, a person would have to add more than 5,000 calories daily."

"It's unlikely most individuals would increase their caloric intake by that much," Kiani commented. Persons who are already overweight may use the holidays "as an excuse to exaggerate their situation," Kiani explained. "They are the ones that will sometimes claim their weight went up 20 or 25 pounds as a result of holiday eating."

Of course, the best approach to the holidays is to keep the extra pounds off by "being conscious of what and how much you are eating and making a special effort to exercise."

"The holiday season is basically a time of inactivity," Kiani stated. "People sit and relax, visit with relatives and friends, read, and perhaps watch more television." Combined with the lack of exercise is the tendency to overindulge in an excessive amount of rich and "junk" foods and alcoholic drinks.

Three ounces of 90-proof whiskey, for example, provide about 300 calories, not counting the calories in the soft drink or other mixer. A 12-ounce can of beer contains about 170 calories.

"And, while you are having a beer or mixed drink at a friend's home, you may be unconsciously popping peanuts, cookies, cheese and crackers or other snacks into your mouth as you listen and talk," Kiani stated. In fact, alcohol increases the appetite by stimulating gastric secretion.

"The people who gain weight are those who keep snacking and eating here and there rather than having regular meals," he said.

Hurt in fight at parking lot

Scott Howell, 2222 State St., reported being beaten last week during an incident in the parking area at the Knights of Columbus Hall, 21st Street and Edison Avenue. He was taken to St. Elizabeth Medical Center for treatment of cuts over the right eye and abrasions.

Howell told police he saw three men beating a woman in the parking lot and reported being beaten himself when he attempted to aid the woman.

"Two women and a man coming out of the K of C hall told police a large crowd had gathered in the area and that one fight was in progress in the parking lot and another fight was occurring across the street. The three also reported trying to break up the melee.

Steel industry shrinking fast

Wall Street Journal — Bethlehem Steel Corp.'s decision to shed nearly 20% of its steelmaking capacity by 1984 is the most significant illustration yet in this recession of how rapidly the domestic steel industry is shrinking.

The nation's second-largest steelmaker, which announced Dec. 27 it would take a record pre-tax charge of as much as $850 million to cover plant closings at Lackawanna, N.Y., and Johnstown, Pa., attributed the closings to recurring losses at those facilities.

But Bethlehem's decision clearly heralds things to come in an industry racked by stiff import competition and the lowest order levels since the 1930s.

Although U.S. steelmaking annual capacity has shrunk only 4% since 1977, to 153.9 million tons, analysts and economists agree that as much as 25% of that primary capacity is technologically noncompetitive by world standards.

In addition to the 3.5 million-ton reduction slated by Bethlehem, at least 10 million tons of capacity will close permanently in 1983 alone, analysts project. "Several plants will never reopen," says Joseph C. Wyman, a steel analyst with Shearson-American Express Inc.

"Steelmakers may not make any grand announcements," they'll just never reopen plants that are already idled."

Retirement of aging and technologically obsolete capacity has emerged as a prime element of domestic steelmaker strategies to firm up prices when a recovery does come.

In another aspect of this strategy, the industry has fought to restrict the foreign steel that it believes to be unfairly priced. Even so, plant closings and import restrictions won't guarantee higher prices, because steelmaking overcapacity is a worldwide problem.

The Japanese, for instance, have seen their crude steel output jump 23% since 1978, despite ever increasing exports propelled growth.

Now, however, even the Japanese are concluding that their growth estimates for steel consumption in the 1980s, formulated several years ago, were too optimistic, and are curtailing expansion plans. They also are making limited cutbacks of their own.

Elsewhere, in developing nations such as South Korea and Taiwan, steelmakers have added capacity and are expected to continue doing so.

A recent study by the International Iron and Steel Institute's secretariat concluded that crude-steel capacity in the Western world will grow insignificantly through 1988, despite further additions in developing countries.

That's because U.S. and European producers will be closing marginal facilities in their home countries while Third World producers continue expanding.

As a result, all nations now are competing for a shrinking pie, a competition that is being waged largely in the U.S. market.

Unless domestic steelmakers succeed in restricting all steel imports, intensified competition likely will frustrate domestic steelmakers' plans to boost prices.

At the same time, a dramatic contraction has taken place in some of the U.S. steel industry's traditional markets.

In 1981, for instance, U.S. auto makers used 11.9 million tons of steel, or 38% less tonnage than was consumed only three years earlier.

With car imports taking more than 25% of the U.S. market, many analysts believe that steelmakers' shipments to Detroit may never reach their former robust levels.

In fact, Bethlehem's Lackawanna plant, which mainly produces sheet for automobile bodies, is in part a victim of what many industry executives believe will be permanently lower shipment levels to the auto industry.

Besides a technological edge, foreign producers, particularly in developing countries, also have significantly lower labor costs.

Major steelworkers, led by Bethlehem and U.S. Steel Corp., twice have attempted to bring wage and benefit concessions from the United Steelworkers union.

Industry negotiators have said that without lower wage rates, more layoffs are inevitable. But even if the industry manages to secure a concessionary labor package early in 1983, more plant closings appear certain.

In fact, some economists believe that as many as half of the 140,000 steelworkers, now on layoff, won't be recalled when a recovery comes.

John C. Tumazos, a steel analyst with Oppenheimer & Co., estimates that at least 25 million tons of domestic steelmaking capacity currently appear in jeopardy, in addition to the 6.2 million tons of capacity closed in 1982.

Among the candidates for closing are Arco Inc.'s plate steel plant in Houston, operating at only 25% of capacity, two Republic Steel Corp. plants in Buffalo and Cleveland, and U.S. Steel facilities in the Pittsburgh area.

If it weren't for the enormous costs associated with steel-mill closings, it is likely that more producers already would have mothballed existing capacity.

The steelmakers' contract with the United Steelworkers union provides for a generous package of pensions, health and life insurance and severance pay when a plant is closed permanently.

In the case of Bethlehem, 70% or as much as $595 million, of the pre-tax charge is for estimated costs for the 10,000 or so workers who will lose their jobs next year.

At roughly $60,000 for each worker, Bethlehem's employee-related costs are typical termination benefits in the steel industry.

REPORTS BEATING

Jeff Cox, 2124 Dewey Ave., was walking at Illinois Avenue and 22nd Street when a white over yellow auto halted near him and three men alighted and beat him, he told police last week.

While he was down on the ground, the assailants stamped on his hands, Cox said. One man was in his 20's, about 5 feet, 9 inches tall, stockily built with blond hair and a mustache.

The second assailant was large, about 26 years old and had brown hair. The third man, about 18 years old, was small with brown-reddish hair.

AARP donates funds to Gerontology Program

A donation of $500 was made to the Gerontology Program at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville to provide quality education and training for students pursuing graduate study in gerontology at the university by the American Association of Retired Persons Inc., Granite City Chapter 1340.

With the older adult population continuing to grow, there is a critical need for highly trained gerontological professionals to serve this age group, a university spokesman said.

The primary mission of the Gerontology Program at SIUE is to meet this critical need for gerontological professionals in this regional area. Since 1976, there has been 67 students who received graduate certificates in gerontology at the university and are currently employed serving the elderly as nurses, psychologists, counselors, nursing home administrators, nutrition site directors, senior citizen center directors, community college teachers, and numerous other positions.

Gerontology students from Granite City include Mary C. Gauen, Paul Grennell, Margaret Henderson, Marie E. Lutz and Mary Jane Raphael.

Although the gerontology program is relatively new by some standards, its graduates have already made an impact on the quality of life of many of the region's older citizens, Anthony Traxler, Ph.D., director, Gerontology Program, explained.

NAB 3 NEAR AUTOS

Three teenage boys were arrested last week in the Forest Avenue area for possessing beer, and two of the three were charged with curfew violations. An investigation is continuing on the alleged looting of parked autos; police have recovered two radios, speakers, a microphone, flashlight, umbrella and jar of cranberry juice.

STEAL DIESEL FUEL

Greg Stamps of Stamps Sewer Service, 1501 Grand Ave., reported last week that several hundred gallons of diesel fuel may have been stolen from a 1,000-gallon fuel tank on the property.

The thief broke a handle on the tank and an initial check showed the contents appeared to be depleted. Records were to be checked to verify the amount of fuel missing, Stamps said.

ON DEAN'S LIST

Stephen E. Spencer, 3204 Newell Drive, was among 34 students named to the Dean's List for superior scholarship during the fall term at Aurora College (Illinois). Spencer, a senior majoring in accounting, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Spencer of Granite City. Aurora College is a four-year senior college of liberal arts located 40 miles west of Chicago.

BURGLARY ATTEMPTS

Delmar Bell, 211 Lincoln Ave., called police last week after finding the knob on the front door damaged and that he was unable to enter the dwelling. He asked officers to force the door and search inside. Nothing appeared to be disturbed, the report stated.

Attempts to enter homes at 2316 E. 25th St., 2506 Iowa St., and 3164 Yale Drive, also were reported last week.

Pack 14 hosts yule party

Cub Scout Pack 14, of Good Shepherd Methodist Church, hosted its first Christmas party this month for members, families and friends.

A potluck dinner was served in the church fellowship hall followed by a special holiday game entitled, The Night Before Christmas.

Three scouts from Den Two were recognized for advancement from the rank of Bobcat to Wolf. They were Ryan Hankins, Robbie Proffitt and Michael Ridenhour. Special honors were also accorded to the three for earning a total of 15 arrow points.

During the evening it was announced the pack will sponsor a ham and bean dinner. To conclude the festive affair all participated in a gift exchange.

STEEL POSTS HIT AT GRANITE SOUTH

A 16-year-old was charged with having no valid vehicle registration last week after the car he was driving knocked down four steel posts near the rear entrance of Granite City High School South with Fehling Road.

The youth told a Granite City police officer that the steering wheel stuck in one position, causing the car to veer off the roadway.

Baskin-Robbins contest seeks new easy recipes

"Jubilee" prize, plus first through fifth place prizes in each of the four categories. Additionally, 75 special awards and 31 honorable mention prizes will be awarded.

Visitors to any of the 2,500 participating Baskin-Robbins stores across the nation, and in Canada, Puerto Rico and Curacao may pick up entry blanks from Jan. 1, 1983 through Feb. 28, 1983.

A panel of leading newspaper food editors and celebrities known for their culinary expertise will taste-test recipes submitted for the 1983 Baskin-Robbins Ice Cream "Show Off" Recipe Contest and conduct the final judging in May with the 131 home economists during April.

Entries must be postmarked by Feb. 28, 1983 to Baskin-Robbins Ice Cream "Show Off" Recipe Contest, P.O. Box 31, Glendale, Calif. 91209, and received by March 7 to qualify. Contest entrants must be 18 years or older and Baskin-Robbins employees and their families are ineligible. For additional details, interested contestants should contact their local participating stores.

Man, 39, pleads in battery case

Clarence H. Hoffman, 39, of East St. Louis, was arrested last week on a battery complaint following an incident at the home of Betty Nance, 2021 Park Ave. Officers were called to a reported disturbance at the residence and arrived to find several people leaving from a rear door, acting in a noisy manner.

Hoffman allegedly was trying to get into a truck and Mrs. Nance, who police said was bleeding profusely, reported having been struck by the man.

It was noted the woman's left eye and lips were on her left arm and right temple. She was taken by private vehicle to St. Elizabeth Medical Center's emergency room.

When he appeared in the Granite City court, Hoffman pleaded guilty to the charge. He was ordered held on a warrant issued by the Department of Corrections for a jail commitment to Menard State Penitentiary.

Hoffman was transferred to DOC custody Tuesday morning.

MAN RUNS AFTER FORGERY SUSPECTED

The manager of First Granite City National Bank, Bellmore Branch, reported to police that a man ran from the bank last week after a clerk became suspicious of some apparent alterations on a $400 check.

Payment already had been ordered stopped on the check taken from the account of A. F. Pace Hardware, Venice.

ISSUE WARRANT

In response to a warrant being issued, alleging failure to appear in court on a charge of failing to display a city license (auto sticker), Catherine Fowler, 27, of 2429 E. 25th St., came to Granite City police headquarters last week and was arrested. She was released on payment of a $50 cash bond.

Get ready for bigger trucks

By BILL WINTER
Of the Press-Record

For years, Illinois, Missouri and Arkansas have avoided the size trucks allowed in the other 45 continental states. But the new five-cents-a-gallon federal gasoline tax hike bypasses the wishes of those states' voters and legislators.

Some trucking firms are pleased by the plan but others say the steeper costs may force them out of business in 1983.

The legislation permits rigs exceeding 80,000 pounds. It will increase the use tax on highway behemoths to $1,600 a year starting in July 1984, rising gradually to $1,900 annually in July 1988. The current maximum is $240 a year.

Overall fees for an 18-wheeler are projected at more than $2,200 in 1984-85. One estimate, including fuel taxes, sales taxes and excise taxes, shows 80,000-pound trucks paying $3,973 in 1985, up 127 percent from 1982.

The federal tax on automobile tires was repealed as part of the legislation, and the levy on heavy truck tires was increased.

The extra nickel per gallon tax, raising the federal portion from four to nine cents, is to be effective April 1, 1983.

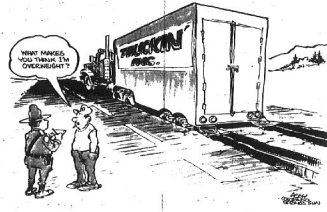

The trade-off for higher taxation is perceived to be the operation of bigger trucks throughout the nation, rather than skirting the three Midwestern states, those risking arrest in those states.

Known variously as the nickel motor fuel tax increase or the highway repair jobs program, the legislation officially is the Surface Transportation Assistance Act of 1982. Passage proved to be difficult but it was achieved after filibusters were blocked.

It repeals, immediately upon signing, a federal excise tax that has added $1.50 to $2.50 to the cost of each car tire.

The five-cent boost on gasoline and diesel fuel will be effective April 1 will be imposed at the refinery.

Since gasoline prices have been dropping slowly during an oil glut and economic recession, motorists may not feel the full impact of the tax hike. But it could become burdensome when and if oil-producing nations begin raising fuel prices again.

Highway contractors, truckers and mass transit systems all are affected by the surface transportation legislation, along with consumers.

Drew Lewis, retiring as U.S. Transportation Department secretary, regards it as "a tremendous move forward." Citing the need to "rebuild crumbling roads and bridges that have been largely ignored for 15 years," he said it also will be "a breakthrough for mass transit."

For the first time, mass transit has been given a guaranteed source of federal revenue and authorization to spend it, just as road officials have for decades.

The beginning of the highway trust fund in 1956.

Transit will get one cent of the five-cent increase and that money will be maintained in a separate account within the surface transportation trust fund.

The Assistance Act seems certain to result in an increase in the number of trucks with double trailers in this region. It allows wider trucks immediately and permits heavier vehicles in 90 days after enactment.

Although many drivers are unhappy that bigger trucks will be seen on area streets and highways—and even though such "monsters" may speed road deterioration—state highway officials generally are pleased by the legislation.

State road departments have seen their federal aid shrink in practical terms since the U.S. gasoline tax hike in 1959.

The American Association of State Highway and Transportation Officials estimates that $5 billion to $6 billion in bridge and road work can be put out for bids within three or four months.

Associated General Contractors expect that "hundreds of thousands of unemployed construction workers and construction equipment manufacturers will soon be gainfully and productively employed."

Senator Charles H. Percy of Illinois says Illinois will get an additional $1.2 billion to $1.5 billion over the next four years, including at least $800 million for highway and bridge repairs and $400 million for transit operations and transit capital improvements.

In the latter figure are rail yard relocation work in this county and $80 million for a new Clark Bridge over the Mississippi River near Alton.

The federal government now will be required to help states pay for enforcement of truck safety standards. And employees who report safety violations or refuse to drive unsafe rigs, will have "whistleblower" protection from harassment.

The U.S. Transportation Department will be given stronger powers to bring civil enforcement actions against truck safety violators.

And through higher taxes, truck operators will bear the cost of repairing road surfaces damaged by the extra weight.

As Senator John Danforth of Missouri sees it, "It is regrettable that the long battle to limit truck weight and size has been lost. Our states, however, will gain more money for highways, bridges and transit as well as more employment in construction trades. The larger trucks will be under more safety requirements and will pay a fairer share of the extra load on the roads."

The legislation enacted Dec. 23 and forwarded to President Reagan, who backed it, is likely to provide $5.5 billion a year, including up to $450 million for Illinois, as Gov. James R. Thompson figures it.

The national administration says the tax increase will create an average of 300 a year.

Supporters envision 170,000 construction jobs being created, plus 150,000 in related industries.

Viewing it as "highway improvement revenue legislation," the president notes that it also will provide two to six weeks of additional benefits for the unemployed workers, for a maximum of 55 weeks of benefits.

Gov. Thompson says Illinois will need to consider higher license fees and a higher state fire tax to provide matching funds of 10 to 50 percent and "unlock the new federal money" in this state.

Illinois' present gasoline tax is 7½ cents per gallon, unchanged for 13 years. It might rise to 11 cents under some of the proposals to be studied by the General Assembly.

Homeowners can obtain information on the best types of firewood for fireplaces by requesting a free copy of "Firewood for Fireplaces" from the Extension office.

Firewood selection and performance of the fireplace depends a lot on the type of wood used, here are some hints on selecting and storing firewood.

Although any kind of wood may be used as a fuel, some make better firewood than others. Generally, heavier hardwoods are considered better fuel than lighter ones.

The best firewood is apple, beech, black locust, hickory, oak, pear and sugar maple. Other woods that make a good fuel are ash, black cherry, elm, silver maple and white pine.

Basewood, catalpa, cottonwood and yellow poplar make only a fair source of fuel for fireplaces.

Dry wood with less than 20 percent moisture ignites better, is lighter, has more heat value and causes less trouble from smoke than green wood.

There is a large number of homes in Madison County that have fireplaces.

Firearm theft charge is filed

Roger Gibson, 1935 Cleveland Blvd., reported last week that three guns were missing from a house on his home.

He said the weapons were a .357-caliber revolver in a black western-style holster, and two .22-caliber single-shot derringers.

Gibson told police that two youths had been visiting at the house just before he discovered the weapons were missing.

The mother of one youth called police and said that her son and another person had given her a derringer and she had taken them in to give up two other guns.

But the pair had then left the house with a .357-caliber weapon and a derringer, she said. She turned over one derringer to police.

Officers went back to the woman's residence a short time later and halted a 21-year-old man nearby. He allegedly told police that one of the two visitors at the Gibson home.

He was identified as Leo D. Tenece, 2631 E. 24th St., Chicago, who had been visiting at the Gibson home.

The woman then gave police two other weapons, which she said had been hidden in a hedgehog in the 2200 block of Olive Street.

Police found a holster in an alley between Adams and Benton streets. It was noted.

Later, a juvenile member of the duo called police headquarters and asked to be picked up by an officer.

Pacheco was charged with theft of a firearm. He appeared in the Granite City court at 4:10 p.m. Monday and pleaded innocent.

Bond was set at $20,000, and a mittimus was to be issued.

A petition is to be filed through the Juvenile Court against the 15-year-old who involved in the case, authorities said.

Triple Lodge marks holiday

Triple Lodge 835, AF&AM, celebrated the holiday season by hosting the annual "Family Night" Christmas party last week at the Masonic Temple, 20th Street and Cleveland Boulevard.

Festivities included dinner, the singing of seasonal carols and a visit from Santa Claus and the Christmas Clown.

About 100 guests were greeted by the "clown," who distributed animal-shaped balloons.

Dale O'Beir, newly-installed worshipful master, opened the event by welcoming members and guests.

Prayer was offered prior to dinner.

Robert Ashcraft, accompanied by Harlan Keel at the piano, led the Christmas carols.

Highlighting the evening was Santa Claus' arrival and his presentation of gifts and candy to more than 60 youngsters who attended.

The counselors will start Feb. 1 helping any older citizen who needs assistance with either their federal or Illinois income tax returns, she added.

Dates and locations for the service will be announced later in the month.

Anyone wishing to volunteer their time for this season is advised to contact Mrs. Hoover at 676-0666 for further information.

Students may attend the session from 9 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. Wednesday, Jan. 5, or from 7:30 to 10 p.m. Thursday, Jan. 16, 1983. Both sessions are in the theater.

For reservations, students may call the BAC Every Woman's Counseling Center, at 235-2700, extension 366 or 368.

Venice studies revamping occupancy permit ordinance

By VALERIE EVENEDEN
Of the Press-Record

Problem involving occupancy permits were among the items discussed at last week's meeting of the Venice City Council.

Fourth Ward Alderman Victor Valentine Sr. also asked Street Superintendent Tom Scaturro to investigate a possible broken water line in a sunken area of ground between the sidewalk and the curb in the 300 block of Weaver Street, and the council rejected a bid of $200 for a 1966 city-owned truck.

A city building inspector was taken to task by Second Ward Alderman George Mangiaracina, who questioned why an occupancy permit was given to persons living in a residence in the 1200 block of Olive Street.

"Did you check that place out?" the alderman inquired of Building Inspector George Lewis.

"I don't recall," he responded, "I don't think I could have handled it more diplomatically. I also believe a lot of people may be confused about what they have to do if they are buying a house or renting one," he added.

Third Ward Alderman George Lewis commented, "I'm not putting words in the inspector's mouth, but maybe he gave them a permit without agreement that they have to do certain things. We don't have to crucify him."

"This is an occupancy ordinance that we passed and we have to live up to it," Mayor Echols reminded the council.

"Maybe they got the permit to go in and work on a place, not to live in it. By giving them the permit, he hasn't given them permission to move in. Let's not accuse the man, he may not know how to give someone a permit," the mayor said in defense of the inspector.

Some questions about a check-off list used by the building inspectors were asked by Second Ward Alderman Hank Svezia, who stated that "according to the sheet I've seen, everything is checked off (for the property in question)."

Mayor Echols suggested the aldermen meet with the city inspectors prior to the next regular council session to review problem areas.

At that time we can tell them how we want the sheets filled out," he said.

First Ward Alderman Phillip Daniels proposed the city issue temporary permits, allowing work to be performed at a residence, followed by an occupancy permit being issued when the work is satisfactorily completed and inspected.

Similar thoughts were offered by Alderman Fleig, who advocated a $5 fee for temporary permits, and Alderman Ervin, who suggested an interim permit, good for 30 to 60 days.

An occupancy permit presently costs $15. A permit is required for rental property at the time utilities are connected prior to new tenants moving in and after an inspection is made.

A landlord must pay the $15 fee to have utilities reconnected during severe weather to protect his property from damage and further $15 fee is required by the city when the property is inspected prior to occupancy.

A review of the occupancy ordinance, with the possibility of changing some aspects of the bill, will be discussed at the next council session, Mayor Echols said.

A monthly report from the Venice Police Department showed a total of $1,029 was received from Willard V. Portell, clerk of the circuit court, reflecting the ones collected during November.

Fifty-five charges were filed by the Venice police in the same month, resulting in 42 arrests.

The charges included 15 civil ordinance violations, 12 traffic violations, 11 state of ordinance violations, six warrants served and three arrests made last month, Police Chief Farris Smith reported.

It was about this time last year that we departed from our usual format to make a few very serious comments about prime interest. Not the prime interest rate—which seems to be in a little better shape this week than it was this time last year—but Prime Interest. Our Prime interest: You, your family and your loved ones, and our community, as a whole.

We've thoroughly enjoyed visiting with you each week and our desire is that through our answers to your questions, you may understand just a little better how the economy works, and that we may have helped in a specific problem, or have given you a tip that will help your money go a little farther. We also hope you've gotten to know us better.

Not the prime interest rate, but Prime Interest. It is that you and your family, safe, healthy, happy and prosperous new year. As we said last year, it's nice, for a change, not to speak of prime interest in terms of percentages, but rather in terms of friendship and good will, this season and every season.

1982 — A look back at an eventful year

Press-Record Photos
by Patrick Foley

The past year has been one of many ups and downs for the Quad-City area. Massive layoffs of the workforce, plants closing indefinitely, a general recession affecting everyone in some way. On the other side of the coin was the opening of a mini-mall in Madison, the building of apartments in Granite City and the optimism of a resurgence of business in the downtown district. It was the year when the people stood together and voiced their anger over higher taxes and at proposed higher utility rates. Also, the year when a man, practically an institution, dedicated to providing recreational services and facilities to Granite Cityans, retired.

Clockwise from top left—the steady decline of the downtown business district, depicted in a photo of 19th Street during the early evening taken in January, gave birth to Granite City Centre Inc., logo inset, which is to be instrumental in the revitalization of downtown.

The Quad-Cities had 17 inches of snow dumped on it at the end of January which caused a temporary standstill of all activity.

The city of Madison had the good fortune of opening a new shopping area named for a local hero. The David Connolly Alpine Village Shopping Center was dedicated in July.

The U.S. government decided to give away millions of tons of surplus cheese which caused long lines outside township offices and other outlets during the year. This line was at the Venice Township office in September.

Despite a recession and building slump, the 121-unit Town and Country Apartments, a $5-million project, were started on Parkview Drive amidst much controversy.

More than 600 citizens attended an Illinois Commerce Commission public hearing and many voiced their anger over a proposed Illinois Power rate increase. The sign above this young protestor summed up the feelings of many.

Harold Brown, director of parks and recreation for the Granite City Park District for 20 years and active in the recreation programs for 30, retired. He was honored at a reception in April and the Nameoki Recreation Center was officially renamed for him.

American Steel Foundries went to a limited work schedule in June, laying off the remaining 900 workers. Eventually the castings plant shut down for an indefinite period later in the year.

Senior Dialogue studies nuclear energy pros, cons

A physics professor who has an active interest in the energy question will give a neutral view of nuclear energy at the Jan. 5 Dialogue with Senior Citizens at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville.

Larry McAneny, acting chairman of the department of physics, will discuss the possible dangers of nuclear power and other energy sources. "Nearly all forms of human activity, from eating to auto travel, involve dangers to human health and safety or the environment," McAneny said. "The program will attempt to present the facts on all sides of the question so nuclear energy may be judged on its relative merits, not on emotional appeals, he said.

The energy dialogue is the opening session in the winter quarter series which meets every Wednesday afternoon to hear different cultural or educational programs for senior citizens.

Other subjects in January are ideas on employment alternatives for seniors, with Edward J. Jarrick, associate professor of management; the persistence of the Victorian heritage, with English professor Robert Duncan; and a search for the roots of American jazz through the St. Louis blues.

The dialogue meets at 1:30 to 4 p.m. in the Mississippi Room of the University Center, sponsored by the Gerontology Program. Admission is free.

For additional information or a complete listing of the winter schedule, interested persons may contact Lisa Pettit at 1-892-3454.

BAT-WIELDING MAN DAMAGES VEHICLE

Raymond Neuling, 2435 Adams St., reported at 5:30 p.m. Sunday that a man had struck his 1974 auto with a large bat or stick, breaking the windshield and two windows on the vehicle. The incident occurred while he was visiting the home of a friend at 2129 Benton St., he told police.

A neighbor reported hearing the sound of glass breaking and yelling at the Vanderhoof, who ran north on Benton to 22nd Street and then turned east. A search of the area by officers failed to locate the culprit. Damage to the vehicle was estimated in excess of $300.

At a glance — GC Council actions

Other Granite City Council actions and discussions last week included the following.

In reaction to what Mayor Paul Schuler called the "deaf ear" of the state-appointed Illinois Commerce Commission (ICC), charged with regulating utilities, he asked the city's fire and water committee to poll aldermen's opinions on backing a drive to have the commission become an elected body. "We've protested and protested for the people and, apparently, it does no good," Schuler explained last week. The council received notification of the ICC's recommendation for a 35 percent increase to Illinois American Water Co. public fire protection customers.

The council authorized the signing of a 40-page 1982-83 contract with Firefighters Local 253. The contract is the first signed agreement with the firefighters in 20 years. Fourth Ward Alderman Sharon Perjak, member of the negotiations committee, has asked for a caucus Tuesday to consider a proposed policemen's contract.

The council has no plans yet for a vacant lot located on Olive Street and Niedringhaus Avenue donated by Mr. and Mrs. Anthony J. Vesel. The property is valued at $10,000. Among the options suggested by the mayor were a playground or park.

City Attorney John Papa was given approval to collect a $5,000 fee, not to be paid by the city, for legal work involving the sale of $25,000 Feralloy Corp. industrial revenue bonds. The bonds were earlier approved by the council to finance the steel-processing company's plans to double its storage area.

An ordinance setting a 10-ton load limit on Sinclair Avenue with a $25 to $500 fine was approved.

The council approved Norfolk & Western Railroad's request to close the railroad crossing on Route 3 at A.O. Smith from 9 a.m. on Jan. 17 to 3:30 p.m. on Jan. 21.

JAMES CLUBB, a 1978 honor graduate of Artesia High School and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl H. Clubb of Granite City, has completed basic training at Fort Knox, Ky., and received an Honor Soldier Award. After spending Christmas at home with his family, he will continue to Fort Lee, Va., for advanced individual training for eight weeks and then will go to Fort Benning, Ga., for three weeks of airborne training. After training, he will be stationed with the 82nd Airborne Division at Fort Bragg, N.C.

KEITH MONAHAN, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Monahan, 3262 Kilmer Drive, has received a master of religious education degree from Southern Baptist Theological Seminary in Louisville, Ky. He has a previous degree from Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville.

Organ Club meets

The Metro-East Organ Club conducted its December meeting at the home of Mary Hartman on Wednesday, Dec. 29. Twelve members and two guests present. During the business meeting, the following were declared the 1983 officers: President—Barbara Williams; Vice president—Helen DeChiaro; Secretary—Betty Ballentine; and Treasurer—Mrs. Hartman.

During the business meeting, members chose Mrs. Ballentine as showing the most improvement during the year in performance on the organ. After the "Name That Tune" contest for the day, the winner for the year was announced as Mrs. Ballentine. A special Christmas musical story was presented including 25 Christmas songs. Identifying the songs was Mrs. Warren, second was Mrs. Ballentine and third was Loretta Siegel.

At the beginning of the meeting, an organist from a lounge in Kirkwood presented a program of Christmas music and then also played request numbers. A potluck dinner was enjoyed by the group.

Also attending were Henry Strackeljohn, Howard Austin, Frank David, Anna Austin, and Frances David. The Jan. 9 meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Williams. The musical game will feature songs with the name of an animal in them.

ALLEGED SALE TO BOY

Norman Gitch, 30, of 2615 Iowa St., night manager at Corner Liquor Store, was charged Thursday evening with selling two bottles of bourbon to a minor. Arrested as minor in possession of alcohol were Michael Crockarell, 20, of 2341 Adams St. and two 17-year-olds living at Edwardsville Route 516, Michael Carlson II and Robert Ashby.

Meetings on school plans

With the arrival of January, a decision is planned soon on which cost reductions to order for the 1983-84 Granite City school year.

Citizens concerned over the future of Granite City High School North, Prather Junior High, Grigsby Junior High and various elementary schools have called a public meeting for 7:30 tonight at the Granite City Township Building, 21st Street and Delmar Avenue.

The school district has not been invited to the meeting, except as part of the general public. Officials are interested in what will be said but are unable at this time to predict what final action will be taken by the board.

At tomorrow's 7:30 p.m. session of the Board of Education, the board will set an early- or mid-January date for a public hearing on cost-cut plans.

After receiving citizens' input, the board tentatively is geared to decide Jan. 18 how to structure the schools for next fall.

Twelve cuts totaling up to $7 million a year have been outlined, and various combinations of them could be chosen for full or partial implementation. If the changes are extensive, much planning will need to be done this winter to schedule next year's students and staff.

Honorable employee dismissals effective in June are to be announced in late March.

The board is trying to balance its sharply unbalanced budget and also to eliminate or reduce projected second-year tax borrowing.

Holiday guests at Jungels Home

Paul Jungels, son of Attorney and Mrs. Charles Jungels, 1331 Lincoln Blvd., has returned to the American University of the Caribbean, where he is attending medical school, after spending several weeks with his parents during the holiday season.

Enroute home he visited the University of Illinois Medical School to be tested for a medical license.

Other guests during the holidays were Mr. and Mrs. Michael (Linda) Orrison and daughters, Susan and Julie, of Lacon, Ill. Mrs. Orrison is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jungels.

GREETING THE CHILDREN. Santa Claus waves as he arrives at the annual Madison Amvets Post 204 "kiddie party" on a Madison Fire Department Truck. About 60 children of Amvets were on hand for the event and received gifts from Santa. The party also included a yule film and refreshments. In the evening, the annual membership party attracted about 160 persons for an evening of food and dancing at the Madison Lion's Den.

Record low 1982 traffic fatalities

Perhaps due, in part, to stricter drunk driving laws and the 55 mph speed limit, fatalities in the Quad-City area reached a record low during 1982 as seven persons died in traffic fatalities locally, far below the number of fatalities in any year since formal record-keeping began in 1963.

Preliminary figures show one fatality locally in January, two in February, one in August, two in November and one in December.

The seven fatalities in 1982 is a vast reduction from the 33 who lost their lives in Quad-City area traffic accidents during 1981.

The 1982 total was the lowest since record-keeping began. Annual fatalities since 1963 follow.

A high-style style

By NANCY ANDERSON

HOLLYWOOD — Aside from being moneyed, Malibu isn't much like Dallas.

On the other hand, a chat with Chad Everett indicates that "Malibu," a four-hour mini-series for ABC, and "Dallas," the CBS prime-time series, have a lot in common.

Poised and lusty studs, chicly toggled and equally lusty ladies, trickery, infidelity, rich backgrounds and all the other good things likely to attract swarms of television viewers.

Chad, the erstwhile high-minded Dr. Joe Gannon of "Medical Center," is playing a low-life living the high-life in "Malibu," a tennis pro chronically unfaithful to his wife and willing to err otherwise for big bucks.

"I call it real high-style soap," says Everett of the complex melodrama.

He knows a thing or two about the real Malibu, because he used to live there, "though not in the colony. I lived in Saroyan's house."

And, he says, in that sumptuous area (as in most areas) "you can be as involved with people as you want to be or you can be as alone."

"In the television movie, everybody wants to be involved. Otherwise we wouldn't have a show."

According to Chad, "Everybody in 'Malibu' is rotten. I'm the only redeemable guy."

Please note the quotation marks. The "Malibu" to which he refers is the TV treat, not the genuine Malibu which happens to be the home of Larry Hagman.

"This is a more accurate representation of Malibu than 'Dallas' is of Dallas," Everett judges.

Portraying a damaged "Vincent Van Patten Adonis," Chad plays the screen husband of Bridget Hanley and the screen lover of Susan Dey which may sound like a rotten job, but somebody has to do it.

George Hamilton, James Coburn and even Kim Novak are among others in the generally glamorous cast.

Proving his thespic versatility, Chad came to "Malibu" from "Airplane II: The Sequel" wherein he played a role for laughs.

"I thought I'd be playing broad comedy," he says, "but, in the character given me, I wasn't."

"I was cast as builder of the first commercial space shuttle to the moon, something we're going to have pretty soon I think."

"Anyway, my character has cut corners on material and specifications and is about to become victim to his own greed.

"In the movie, I'm George C. Scott as Patton; I'm walking down a razor blade in shoes an inch wide.

"The character is very straightlaced, but, because of circumstances, he's funny."

Before he got into "Medical Center," Chad played a range of roles: a Seminole Indian youth, a ranger, a U.S. Marine, Ann-Margaret's romantic interest.

And, with the series behind him, he's able to accept diverse roles again.

"Being out of a series is so much fun," he says happily.

As ready to take a chance in private life as he is professionally, Everett declares that he hopes to be aboard when the first commercial space ship actually heads moonward.

"Sure I'd go," he says. "I'd go in a hot minute. Think how a trip like that would expand your horizons... It would do a lot more for you than smoking pot."

When Robert Loggia was a kid, a first-generation American on the lower East Side in New York, he found it hard to take pride in his Sicilian heritage.

He'd been given a complex by people who asked him, even when in the primary grades, "Sicilian, huh? What kind of gun you carry?"

But now, as an actor who has established himself on stage, in films and in television, as a man who understands his own worth, he can look at his roots dispassionately; he can play a Mafia boss without getting into a huff (especially since the boss he just played in two "Pink Panther" films was French).

Taking advantage of the opportunities in the land to which his parents had migrated, Loggia graduated from the University of Missouri School of Journalism after which he enrolled at the Actors' Studio.

He gained national attention through a mini-series for Disney playing El-fago Baca, a Mexican, before starring in a television series, "T.H.E. Cat."

"After that went off," says Loggia, "I dropped out of the scene except for doing a couple of plays. Then, when I came back to Hollywood, I had to start over. The place to start is on TV."

So he began doing episodic television, generally playing a villain.

Point of View

Jane Pauley — 'Today's' woman

By DON FREEMAN

NEW YORK — I think someone could write a scholarly monograph, if there were a demand for one, on the maturing of Jane Pauley.

She started awfully young — wherever she went, she was always the youngest of the lot. Three years ago, for example, she was the youngest person ever to receive an honorary degree from De-Pauw University, in Greencastle, Ind., which awarded her a Doctor of Journalism.

Not many Doctors of Journalism are floating around. And earlier, in the mid-'70s, she was the first

In "Little House," he played a man who'd shot his wife and daughter. "I got into a rut, really," Loggia admits. "People, running into me in the supermarket will back off thinking they've seen me on the post office wall."

Lately, by giving up episodic television he's changed the quality of his career from one point of view, but not from another; for he's still playing rotten.

In Blake Edwards' "The Trail of the Pink Panther," released Dec. 17, and "Revenge of the Pink Panther," set for release in the summer of '83, he'll be seen as French godfather Bruno Langois.

In "Scarface," a revamped treatment of Paul Muni's "Scarface," he's a Cuban cocaine boss.

However, in "Psycho II," instead of playing a heavy, he plays a psychiatrist whose judgment looses Tony Perkins, madman of the original "Psycho."

Having performed magnificently as Richard Gere's no-account father in "An Officer and a Gentleman," Loggia might be an Oscar contender in the Best Supporting Actor category if Lou Gossett, also a fine actor, hadn't been granted more screen time in the same film.

"Most of my scenes were left on the cutting room floor," Loggia says with no real rancor. "Nevertheless, the picture has generated a lot of heat for me. I'm very, very thankful for it."

woman to co-anchor a regularly scheduled news program in Chicago. Not that she was a teen-ager, exactly, but she wasn't all the deep into her 20s and the possessor of a political science degree from Indiana University.

In 1970, she joined the "Today" program at NBC in New York. Now she is 31 and she seems less — well, less vulnerable. This is not a woman who would be shaken to tears now as she was in her Chicago days when a mean-spirited Chicago critic suggested in print that she had "the IQ of a cantaloupe."

Now, I think, she would shrug off such a heavy-handed and obviously errant diatribe. Now, she has the self-assurance and poise to withstand the knocks which, come to think of it, have not been prevalent for a long time.

"I look back at the 25-year-old I was when I joined 'Today' and I wonder, what in the world did they think they were doing?" Jane Pauley says, amused at the thought. "Why would they hire me?" But I guess I was equal to the job. I mean, I was always a news freak. I didn't start out as a weather girl or an actress.

"I look back and I think how Tom — Tom Brokaw — more or less inherited me. Tom was a genuine reporter before he came to 'Today,' a White House correspondent for the network. Putting me in with Tom was a luxury that NBC could afford then. We didn't have the competition and a woman could be promoted, frankly, faster than her experience warranted.

"I remember," Janes says, "that in the auditions I had to compete with experienced people. They just brought me as a courtesy. But my performance at the audition apparently was worth a second look. They brought me back for a week with Tom."

She smiled. "I guess they thought I was pretty good."

She said: "I didn't have any notion of what the job entailed. It was a fickle situation. NBC could have very easily have said, 'You're doing a bang-up job, kid, but we're changing the format,' and out the door I'd be. One thing I did know was that I wasn't a host — not a co-host with Tom. I have been No. 2 to Tom Brokaw's No. 1 — he has always been the chief authority figure. With Tom's leaving that could be fuzzied up a bit. Somebody has to wake America up in the morning."

In recent years, "Today" has been compelled to go against ABC's fast-rising "Good Morning, America." We turned to that.

"The competition has been good for us," Jane believes. "Our audience has become larger — in the millions — than when I started on the program five years ago. The competition has stirred up interest in morning viewing. And it's also forced us to sharpen up. The substance of our program has remained the same but it's packaged more up to date. It's slicker, better produced but not at the expense of the program's quality."

This past year, Jane expanded her workload to include newscasting on Sunday. She had her reasons.

"It was critical for me to remind viewers of my news role," Jane says. "I suspect that is what was in Bill Small's mind when I was assigned to the Sunday news." The reference is to the news director for NBC.

"NBC has an investment in me. It's up to me to become as good at news as I can be. And what I'm doing is a job, not a showcase. There was a time when television news was meant to be a showcase. Some of the anchor women on local stations had one goal — they wanted to go to Hollywood, which is the kind of attitude that devalues the work we're doing."

She paused. "Something else bothers me a lot. It's called age-ism and it's rampant in our society and in our newsrooms. People are now filing lawsuits on the basis on job discrimination because a TV station manager says they're too old at 38, 39, 40. Our throwaway society now applies to people and it's dangerous."

"And it's especially important in regard to women. I can put that in the form of a question — will America have as much respect for Aunt Barbara Walters as they have for Uncle Walter Cronkite?"

He has faith in 'Gavilan'

By ALAN L. GANSBERG
HOLLYWOOD — The ratings for "Gavilan" may be shaky in the early going, but star ROBERT URICH says he's fully confident the series has potential "because I know what we have in the can."

"I think the audience is too sophisticated for the car chases and stuff," he said. "After you've seen 'Raiders of the Lost Ark,' how can you be dazzled by that sort of thing?"

"Gavilan" got off to a rough start. There were production problems and then co-star FERNANDO LAMAS left the series and died of cancer a few weeks later. He was replaced by PATRICK MACNEE.

"We're still trying to find out how to utilize him best," remarked Bob.

The series has also given Bob a chance to flap his wings as a producer. He doesn't fulfill that function on the series, but more than any time before he is having a say in the decisions made about the series.

"I got them the guy to score the pilot," Bob noted. "I worked with the composer on the theme. And when I heard the song performed, I got as much of a Canada."

"You've got to rid your mind of the craziness of the set and the business," he explained. "And I've got to get in touch with my family. That's what is really important to me."

BILLY GRAHAM, world-famous evangelist, will be appearing in a film his organization has financed. The film's plot line is being told only in small doses, but it is said to have "a universal message."

Also in the cast are HOPE LANGE, JOHN CULLUM and JOHN HAMMOND. Their family is falling apart from drugs, midlife crisis and the usual array of modern ills.

Looking for a new Broadway periphery for the last few years has been

CAROL CHANNING, who may have found one. We're told only, "It won't be 'Dolly.'"

Joining DAN AY-KROYD and EDDIE MURPHY in the feature "Black and White" will be legends RAY MILLAND and RALPH BELLAMY.

Put it on your shopping list for 1983 — the MAE WEST craze may be back. Dolls modeled after the famed femme fatale will be on the market next year.

JAMIE LEE CURTIS has left the horror genre to do a love story aptly titled "My Love Letters." JAMES KEACH is the object of her affections. lift as I do from acting. I've gotten bitten by the producer bug."

Consequently, he's set up a production outfit with ideas of putting together projects of his own. One of them, a possible TV movie, would deal with a subject very special to Bob — child adoption.

Both his children, RYAN and EMILY, are adopted. Bob and wife HEATHER MENZIES had to go through the full process of applying for a child, psychological tests, the waiting period and personal traumas he won't reveal to strangers.

"You're two normal Americans, who meet and marry," he said. "You dream of having children, but you can't. That's happening to thousands of American couples, more and more each year, it seems. And there are fewer babies to go around."

Life for the Urich family is good, though. A large new house, with a lodge on the grounds and a large swimming pool. Coyotes can be heard howling at night, but during the daytime a child is likely to toddle through.

Away from Los Angeles, the Urichs prefer the water — they have a home at the beach and one at a lake in

HOLLYWOOD HEADLINERS

in the new movie "48 Hours," is a real redskin since he's half-Cherokee and half-Seminole.

Sonny says he didn't mind playing a cold-blooded killer. In fact, he's already suggested a similar role for himself as his character's identical twin in a sequel to "48 Hours."

Look for Landham on a record label soon, since he's also a musician and composer.

Daytime-soaper sweethearts Bill Hayes and Susan Seaforth Hayes have been signed for another two years on "Days of Our Lives."

For Christmas, as he has for the past eight years, Bill is giving Susan a leather-bound volume of programs from all the symphonies, plays and operas they've seen this year.

Susan isn't saying what she's giving Bill, but she's giving his children the benefits of her decorating talents by way of redoing their bedrooms.

Wonder Woman Lynda Carter appeared in person before the Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors to protest the proposed rezoning of 2,000 acres adjoining her ranch in Calabasas. The rezoning would remove the land from ecological protection and open it up to commercial development.

Howard Rollins of "Ragtime" will be huddling with Norman Lear to talk about a television series. Rollins is currently working on NBC's "Member of the Wedding."

Kirk Douglas just finished a tour of Afghan refugee camps in Pakistan for the U.S. Information Agency.

Julie Andrews had to rush back home to Gstaad, Switzerland, after promoting the reopening of "Victor-Victoria" in New York to prepare for the wedding of Robert Loggia to Audrey O'Brien which took place there.

Dick Clark surprised Barry Gordon with the gift of a record Barry made when he was a guest on "The $25,000 Dollar Pyramid" TV show with Clark. The tune's called "I Can't Whistle," and Barry was only seven years old when he recorded it.

Gordon, who now can whistle, currently plays Archie Bunker's attorney on "Archie Bunker's Place."
